5 Donnell Woolford

Defensive backs now have a mini-Heisman Trophy to shoot for, the Jim Thorpe Award. Clemson's Donnell Woolford is one of 29 national finalists for the award, and with his continued hard work he just might win it. Willie Shearer fills us in on Clemson's first-rate cornerback.

7 Chuck Reedy

Clemson has signed some great talent out of Florida in the last decade and running back coach Chuck Reedy is a major reason. The dean of the Clemson assistant coaches, he is also the major reason every starting running back Clemson has had over the last decade has played pro football. Annabelle Vaughan takes a look at one of Clemson's top assistant coaches.

52 Banks McFadden

It has been nearly 50 years since Banks McFadden ran over enemy defenses on the football field and sank soft hook-shots on the basketball court for the Clemson Tigers. His accomplishments were legendary and today he will be deservedly honored with the retiring of his jersey numbers in both sports. Kassie Kessinger profiles a Clemson legend.

57 Pro Players

The Super Bowl has turned into a Clemson alumni game in recent years. In general you can't watch a pro football game these days without seeing a Clemson player in the lineup. In this eight-page spread, Tim Bourret runs down Clemson players in the pros and some of their significant accomplishments.

69 Rule Changes

This is the 50th anniversary of the NCAA statistics service and as a special feature in honor of the occasion, the NCAA has published the chronological history of football rule changes. Go back in time and discover how the game used to be played.

71 This Day in Tiger Football

This is a significant day in Clemson football history because the Tigers have never lost a football game on this date. Six years ago one of the landmark Clemson victories took place during a national championship season. Foster Senn takes us back over the games played on this day.

81 Death Valley Opener

The first game in the history of Death Valley was played on this date in 1942. "The signs were hung at 1:00 PM and the game started at 2:00 PM," recalls Frank Howard. Resident historian Foster Senn talked with a couple of the Tigers who made the inaugural run down the hill.

85 University Feature

Clemson researchers have developed a robot that could lead to advancement in technology dealing with artificial limbs. Mark Ford discusses the possibilities.

87 Kevin Johnson

This junior golfer might be the top underclassman athlete in his sport at Clemson. Kevin Johnson won the United States Publinx championship this summer and is now set to lead Clemson into the top five in the nation and into contention for the national championship. Willie Shearer summarizes Johnson's impact on the Clemson program.

115 Jack Crowe

Clemson might be the only top 20 team in the nation with a quarterback coach with a chemistry degree. The football field won out over the science field when Jack Crowe was deciding on his life's work. Foster Senn takes a look at Clemson's unique assistant coach.

116 Football Travel

A few decades ago half of the Clemson football team was forced to hitch-hike to the Georgia Tech game. This is just one of many interesting stories about traveling with the Tigers over the years. Willie Shearer tells us what is involved in moving the Clemson football team.

Today's Game

By Tim Bourret

Two Top Coaches Meet

Fans will be treated to a coaching battle between two of the top 10 winningest active coaches in America when Clemson and Georgia do battle. Clemson's Danny Ford has won 73.7 percent of his games in his nine seasons at Clemson (68-23-4), while Vince Dooley ranks eighth with a 71.4 winning percentage (185-71-10).

Barry Switzer of Oklahoma is the winningest active coach at the moment with an 84 percent winning mark, followed by Joe Paterno of Penn State and Tom Osborne of Nebraska.

Name	School	Pct
1. Barry Switzer	Oklahoma	.839
2. Joe Paterno	Penn State	.814
3. Tom Obsborne	Nebraska	.809
4. Bo Schembeckler	Michigan	.773
5. LaVell Edwards	BYU	.747
6. Danny Ford	Clemson	.737
7. Herb Deromedi	C. Michigan	.722
8. Vince Dooley	Georgia	.7142
9. Pat Dye	Auburn	.7138
10. Terry Donahue	UCLA	.7061
11. Bobby Bowden	Florida State	.7055

A Clemson win can cause a movement in the rankings, however, and there are some ironic twists to it. Pat Dye of Auburn can move ahead of Dooley if the Tigers best Georgia. Dye has the day off while Clemson is playing Georgia. Dye has won 71.38 percent of his games, while Dooley is at 71.4. A Dooley loss would move him to 71.1 percent. The unusual twist of course is that Dooley is an Auburn graduate and Dye is a Georgia graduate, so they coach each other's alma mater and rank eight-nine in the winningest active coaching fraternity.

Perry Off to Award Winning Start

Michael Dean Perry is off to an incredible start with seven tackles for loss and 4.5 sacks in just two games. He has 14 tackles overall to lead the Tigers in that department and he has done it while playing just 55 snaps over the first two contests, certainly a Lombardian effort if there ever was one.

He might have had his best performance and the finest all-around showing by a Clemson defensive player when he had eight tackles, including a career-high four for negative yardage at Virginia Tech. The tackles for loss included three sacks for negative 30 yards, and he also had a caused fumble and an interception.

Clemson's senior defensive tackle is now fourth in ACC history in quarterback sacks and is all alone in third place in tackles for loss. Perry now has 44 tackles for loss and he went ahead of former Clemson linebacker Randy Scott into third place last week. He needs just three sacks to go ahead of his brother, William Perry, for the ACC record in terms of quarterback sacks. Michael Dean is now all alone in second place in Clemson history in sacks, so the Perry family ranks one-two in that department.

Clemson-Georgia Rivalry

This is just the seventh time since 1954 that Clemson and Georgia have come into this game with a perfect record. It is the first time since 1981 that both teams have been 2-0 and Clemson would love a repeat of that afternoon's activity. The Tigers do have one thing in their favor as the 1981 game was also played on September 19 and the Tigers walked away with a 13-3 victory in a game that took 2 hours and 35 minutes to play, the shortest game in Clemson history.

The series has been a close one in the last 10 years as Georgia holds a 5-4-1 lead since 1976. Overall, Georgia has a 36-15-4 lead in a series that dates back to 1897. In games played at Clemson the series stands 7-7-2 and in games at Death Valley it is also deadlocked 5-5-2. Eight of the last 10 meetings have been decided by a touchdown or less, and two of the last three have been decided by a field goal in the last 10 seconds. Clemson won last year on a 46-yard field goal by David Treadwell as the final horn sounded.

Georgia Update

While Clemson has been outstanding at the tailback position in the last decade, Georgia has a tradition of its own. Since the days of Herschel Walker, Georgia has been gaining hugh chunks of real estate from its ground game. The Dogs average 388 yards per game on the ground and a 6.4 per carry average coming into this game.

Lars Tate is the leader of the offense from the tailback slot. The senior has 350 yards and a 7.0 average in two games to go with six touchdowns. The All-SEC runner had 954 yards in 1986 and caught 22 passes to go with 102 points scored.

James Jackson is one of the finer option quarterbacks in the nation. So far this year he has hit 12 of 23 passes for 208 yards and has 98 more yards on the ground. His favorite target is Cassius Osborne, who has five catches for 84 yards. Troy Sadowski is one of the most improved players on the team according to Clemson coaches and the three-year starter will be one of the top blockers on the field today.

It seems Georgia always has a talented linebacker or strong safety and this season is no exception. John Brantley is a senior who was the team's top tackler last year with over 100 stops. Tyrone McClendon is a fine defensive lineman, as is Richard Tardits, who led the team in quarterback sacks in 1986.

McFadden on the Loose

When Clemson lost all three of its top tailbacks last year to the NFL (Terrence Flagler to San Francisco, Kenny Flowers and Steve Griffin to Atlanta), most felt the Clemson running game might be down in 1987. But, thanks to an outstanding offensive line, and the progress of some young tailbacks, Clemson has not skipped a beat.

It has taken only two games for Wesley McFadden to reach a single game yardage total Flagler, Griffin and Flowers never could attain. All the sophomore did last Saturday at Virginia Tech was gain 226 yards in 21 carries, the third highest single game rushing total in Clemson history.

Included in the yardage was an 89-yard scamper in the fourth quarter that put the game out of reach. It was the third longest run in Clemson history, even longer than Flagler's 88-yard jaunt last year at Wake Forest. Thus McFadden had the third longest run and the third best rushing performance in the same game.

One further irony is the list of longest runs in Clemson history. Two of the top three runs have been by someone named McFadden. Furthermore, both will be in the spotlight when Clemson meets Georgia Saturday: Wesley as a tailback for the current Clemson team, and Banks, who will have his number (66) retired at halftime of the contest. Banks McFadden had a 90-yard run from scrimmage against Presbyterian in 1939 and it is still tied for the longest run in Clemson history. Buck George had a 90-yarder against Furman in 1951.

Vince Dooley and Danny Ford are both among the top 10 winningest active coaches.

Tailbacks Excell

The tailback position gained 294 yards rushing at Virginia Tech, the third highest tailback total by a Clemson team coached by Danny Ford. Terry Allen added 68 yards to McFadden's 226-yard total and the duo combined to average 7.9 yards per carry. Clemson coach Danny Ford got 218 yards and five touchdowns out of the tailback position in the Western Carolina game, and overall Ford-coached teams have gone over 200 yards at the tailback position 18 times.

The record is 347 against Duke in 1982, a game in which Cliff Austin set the Tiger individual single game record with 260 yards. Against Western Carolina Joe Henderson led the way with 80 yards, while Terry Allen had 75 and Wesley McFadden had 63. This was just the third time under Ford that three tailbacks had over 60 yards in the same game.

Phillips, Lancaster Off to Knockdown Start

Offensive guard John Phillips and fullback Chris Lancaster are involved in quite a battle in the knockdown block category, a statistic that is receiving more and more attention even though it has been kept by coaches for many years.

Last year Phillips led the team with a record 100 knockdowns, while Lancaster was second with 61, quite an accomplishment from the fullback position. In the game at Blacksburg last Saturday, both were at their blocking best as both at least equalled the previous knockdown block record.

Phillips and Lancaster both played every snap in the swamplands at Virginia Tech and combined for 35 knockdown blocks in the 75 plays. Phillips established a new overall record with 18, while Lancaster set a new running back mark with 17. Phillips had the previous record with 17 at Virginia last year and Jeff McCall had the old running back record with 16 in the 1982 Duke game when Cliff Austin had 260 yards rushing. Phillips now has 26 for the year, while Lancaster has 25.

Defense Record Setting

Since Danny Ford has been the coach at Clemson there have been only two games in which the opposition has failed to rack up at least 140 yards in total offense. Incredibly, both instances have taken place in the last two weeks. Western Carolina gained only 109 yards in total offense at Clemson on September 5, then the lowest total against a Danny Ford coached team.

Last Saturday the Tigers played "Can you top this," and allowed just 60 yards total offense, 23 rushing and 37 passing. You have to go back to the 1963 Clemson-Virginia game to find a lower opponent total offense figure as the Cavs gained only 40 yards in total offense that day. The all-time record is -12 yards by Furman in 1948 in a 41-0 Clemson win in Death Valley.

Clemson racked up seven sacks and 16 tackles for loss last Saturday, the tackle for loss total was an all-time Clemson record. The 1979 Tigers had 15 tackles for loss in a loss to Maryland.

So far this season the Clemson defense has allowed just 0.5 yards per rush, 1.5 yards per play and 2.5 yards per pass attempt. The longest drive against Clemson this year is just 42 yards and there have been just two drives over 20 yards against the Clemson defense in the first two games. Three times Virginia Tech had the ball inside the Clemson 20 and could not score.

Treadwell 6-7

Clemson placekicker David Treadwell must have mixed emotions at this stage of the season. He is off to his best start in three years in terms of field goals with 6-7, but he saw his extra point string snapped at Blacksburg. Treadwell had made 64 straight extra points and was just six away from Bob Paulling's record of 70 before he missed at Virginia Tech. The snap was not the best and the hold a little off as Treadwell made his attempt.

The senior from Jacksonville, FL now has 35 field goals in his career, good enough for second place in Clemson history in that department. He went ahead of Paulling last Saturday and trails only Obed Ariri, who had 63 for his four-year career. Treadwell is also third in kick scoring and fourth in career PATS at Clemson.

The Official Hot Dogs of CLEMSON TIGERS

Donnell Woolford

By Willie Shearer

Sitting and talking with Clemson's starting cornerback Donnell Woolford, you get the impression that his humble attitude is closer to that of a determined walk-on than a preseason All-American. Rather than talk about specific achievements and lofty goals, as it would be perfectly acceptable for a great athlete to do, the topic that keeps popping up with Donnell Woolford is hard work.

In all honesty, Woolford realizes what it means to be a starting cornerback on one of the country's finest defensive units, but he is also fairly certain that without countless hours of hard work his natural talent would not take him very far.

A 1987 Sporting News preseason All-American and one of 29 nominees for the Jim Thorpe award (given annually to the best defensive back in the nation) Woolford is coming off a sophomore season that saw him accumulate 12 passes broken up, the second highest total in the ACC behind teammate Delton Hall's 14. He was also fifth in the league in punt returns and started every game for the Tigers except the Citadel contest, which he missed because of a pulled hamstring. In fact, only elder teammates James Earle and All-ACC cornerback Hall played more downs on defense than Woolford last year.

Coming off a season like that, it wouldn't be surprising for Donnell to set some fairly high goals for the upcoming season. Instead, he says quietly, "I just want to try and do better than last year, maybe get more interceptions and more passes broken up. I'm just going to work at it, but you can't tell if maybe the other teams will try to play to the other side of the field from me. I'll just work hard and try to make things happen."

Where he refuses to be even remotely boastful personally, Woolford clearly expects a high level of success for the team in 1987. "I'm looking for good things from this team," he says. "We've been working hard for a good while now, making a lot of improvement, and I think we're ready."

Woolford might not be as active statistically in 1987 as opponents probably will throw to the opposite side of the field.

Woolford, for one, has been doing his part to help ease the freshmen defensive backs into the groove of major college football. He recalls the hard work that took place in preseason during the dog days of August, when, as an upper classman, he had to be concerned not only about his own performance, but also about the example he might be setting for the freshmen.

"It was always real hot at practice, and at scrimmages it was always up around 100 degrees because there's no wind in the stadium. But I just tried to put those things out of my mind as much as possible. It's impossible for it not to get to you a little bit, but you've just got to work hard anyway and try to set an example for the younger players."

Donnell also recalls the lessons he learned as a younger player from leaders like Delton Hall, saying, "I learned a lot from him in terms of working hard in practice. He had been through a lot of adversity as a younger player because he almost lost his job at one point. So he was real good about not letting anything bother him. That's what I tried to learn from him."

Defensive secondary coach Bill Oliver says the sky is the limit for Woolford. "A defensive back has to do a lot of things," Oliver says, "not just pass defense. Donnell is able to play zone coverage, man coverage, and combinations of zone and man. And he supports the run as well as any defensive back I've ever been around. He has good awareness, he knows how to read trick plays, and you never see him miss a tackle. He whips blockers in pursuing the football, and he doesn't get blocked — if he does, he doesn't stay blocked. The thing I notice about him is the fact that he realizes what's at stake for him, not just at Clemson, but hereafter."

And is an NFL career in the offing for Donnell Woolford? "That's not something I really think about," Woolford says, "because you can be the absolute best and never get a chance. So many things could go wrong. I just try to take things day-by-day and not look too much farther ahead tnan that. I just want to graduate. I figure if I work hard and do my best every day, the other things will take care of themselves."

That seems like a great attitude. With Woolford taking care of things day by day and play by play in the Tigers' defensive secondary, Clemson opponents might do well to steer clear of his corner of the field.

Chuck Reedy

What exactly is success?

For every person, in every occupation, there are different measures of success. In some occupations, these measures are quite obvious, while in others, they are not quite as visible.

The obvious way to measure a football coach's success is his team's record. For an assistant coach, it may be measured by the performance of the individual players he coaches.

In both of these areas, Clemson's running back coach Chuck Reedy has measured up to be a big success. But, Reedy knows that success as a coach is not only determined by numbers and statistics, but by how he deals with his players and the positive effects he has on their lives off the football field.

With the exception of Head Coach Danny Ford, Reedy has been on the Clemson coaching staff longer than anyone else. He came to Clemson in July of 1978 from Kentucky. For one year he coached under Charley Pell and when Ford was named head coach, Reedy became the full time running back coach.

Reedy says that he feels he came in on the "ground floor". The freshmen that were on the team during his first year at Clemson were eventually the seniors that led the Tigers to the Orange Bowl and the National Championship in 1981.

Reedy has indeed been here from the beginning of what has been a sort of new Golden Age in Clemson football. Since he came to Clemson in 1978, the Tigers have gone 78-24-4, the eighth best record in college football. The Clemson rushing game, led by Reedy's running backs, has averaged 237.2 yards per game.

And, on top of all these impressive statistics, look at a list of some of the running backs Reedy has coached, see if any of these names ring a bell — Chuck McSwain, Jeff McCall, Cliff Austin, Stacy Driver, Kevin Mack, Kenny Flowers, Terrence Flagler. All have NFL experience, and all but one of the backs that have started under him have been drafted. All three tailbacks off last year's team made NFL clubs in 1987.

But Chuck Reedy does not like to take much credit for his players' success. "I don't pretend in any way, shape or form to develop someone without talent into a great football player," he said. "I've just been fortunate in that I've had excellent talent to work with."

It sounds simple: Get talented players to work with and you're likely to be a successful coach. But getting this talent is not quite so easy. A talented high school athlete has innumerable schools vying for him. Therefore, fielding a successful team requires successful recruiting.

Recruiting seems to be Chuck Reedy's strong suit. He recruits from South Carolina to Miami. (He used to recruit all of Florida, now he just has the Eastern part.)

"Recruiting for Clemson is not as difficult as at some schools because of everything Clemson is," said Reedy. "With the people, the facilities and the tradition here, we have a great product to sell."

For years, Reedy has won prize recruits from his territory. His success in recruiting is no surprise after the hard work he puts into it. "It takes a great deal of patience and it can be very frustrating," said Reedy. "We identify prospects as early as their ninth grade year and then work to establish a relationship with them. Then, by the time they reach their senior year, we're ahead."

Establishing that relationship is what Reedy feels is the key to successful recruiting. "I have to get as close to that young man and his family as I possibly can and earn their trust."

Reedy doesn't see recruiting as a job that ends once a player signs, but as a commitment that lasts for many years. "I've made a commitment to that young man and his family and I feel responsible for that. If he's in trouble or not doing well, I feel responsible. If he's unhappy or homesick, I try to remedy that. And by the same token, if he's successful at Clemson and later in life, I take pride in that."

Besides feeling responsible for the players he recruited, Reedy also feels a great amount of responsibility for the players he coaches. Over the past five years, Reedy has had a unique situation in that he coached two running backs that he had also recruited: Kenny Flowers and Terrence Flagler.

"I strive every day to be fair to every player I coach regardless of who he is or where he's from," said Reedy, "but when you recruit and then coach someone you have a special feeling toward them."

Kenny Flowers, Clemson's all-time leading rusher, says that he will never forget all that Reedy has done for him. "Out of all the people that have influenced me in my life, I look up to him the most," Flowers said. "He was always there, even when I first got to Clemson.

"I've always been a good athlete but I'm not the smartest guy in the world. Some schools didn't want to take a chance on me, but he stuck with me and gave me confidence," Flowers said. "That made me want to do well for him. I wanted to succeed for my team and for my family, but mostly, I wanted to play well for him."

Chuck Reedy has been an assistant under Danny Ford longer than any other current coach.

Teaching: Still Number One

The more things change, the more they stay the same. At Clemson there are some things that (we hope) will never change: Clemson orange. Tillman Hall. Tigerama.

And one more very important thing. No matter how much the university grows, teaching will remain its most important role.

As a land grant institution, Clemson emphasizes the three areas of research, public service and teaching. On the brink of the 21st century, research efforts are unquestionably important. And public service programs serve all the citizens of South Carolina. But, over and above these missions, when a student enters Clemson, he or she should be able to count on receiving an excellent education. And great teaching doesn't happen without great teachers.

Every former Clemson student probably recalls a teacher whose personal style and commitment added a special dimension to the word "education." Maybe it was John Lane in English, Doug Bradbury in engineering, or one of the many others who are remembered with affection and appreciation. Their legacies remain long after graduation.

Administration and faculty are committed to the challenge of attracting and keeping outstanding teachers. In addition to the Master Teacher award and alumni professorships, the Faculty Senate last year recommended annual awards of $3,000 to outstanding faculty in each college to enhance scholarly activity related to teaching.

Not all great teaching occurs in the classroom. The awards for excellence in student journalism won by the Tiger staff, national and regional recognition for the Clemson Players, and a nationwide "widget" competition won by Clemson electrical and computer engineering students illustrate the value of learning environments outside the traditional lecture hall.

The College of Architecture tried a new approach to teaching this past spring. During "Spring Week," students and faculty pursued independent study outside their usual areas. "Designer" birdhouses, hot-air ballooning and construction of an authentic Plains Indian tepee (with the assistance of a Comanche chief's descendants) were just a few of the projects. According to Dean James F. Barker, this was more than fun-and-games. "The goal was to give students and faculty a new perspective, to look at the education process and concentrate on learning to think rather than simply learning facts," he said.

Last year when the Carnegie Foundation's Report on the Status of Undergraduate Education found a nationwide lack of balance between teaching and research, Clemson reacted promptly. The Faculty Senate and the Office of the Vice Provost for Undergraduate Studies formed committees to review Clemson's status in each area addressed by the report, including teaching, and a day-long faculty workshop explored the teaching/research balance specifically.

President Lennon made it clear when he announced the Second Century program. "Clemson has a long and proud tradition of undergraduate education," he said, "of preparing young people for the world in which they will live and work. This commitment to teaching is basic, firm and unshakable."

Students and faculty in the College of Architecture studied hot-air ballooning during Spring Week.

President Lennon

On September 6, 1986, Clemson University formally inaugurated Dr. Max Lennon as the university's seventh president. The governor of South Carolina, the Honorable Richard W. Riley, spoke of a "quest for academic excellence which has never been more important than today," at the inauguration. He called Dr. Lennon, "the leader for the future of all South Carolina."

During his short time as president, Dr. Lennon has accomplished much, including the school's "Second Century Plan." This project, drawn up with help from faculty and state business leaders, emphasized research in agriculture, engineering, basic science, marketing, management, textiles and the quality of life; all these areas and several more were just a portion of a proposal to endure economic growth within the state.

It is the by-product of Lennon's overall attitude that Clemson is here to help its students to become successful and in general make the state a better place to live.

Dr. Lennon is a native of Columbus County, NC and earned his bachelor's degree in animal science from N.C. State in 1962. He also earned a doctorate in animal science from the same institution in 1970.

He had been at Ohio State for two years prior to his move to Clemson. He served as executive dean for agriculture, home economics and natural resources. Lennon was also on the Ohio State Faculty Senate and was co-chairman of the Governor's commission on agriculture.

Previously, he had served as dean of the college of Agriculture and director of the Agricultural Experiment Station at the University of Missouri and as associate dean and director of research in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Lennon, who has also served as an assistant professor at Texas Tech and Missouri, spent two years with the International Agri-business firm Central Soya of Illinois. He also has participated in many national and international conferences concerning new technologies in agriculture.

The 46-year-old Lennon was chosen from about 200 candidates for the presidency at Clemson.

Lennon commented on his philosophies and goals for Clemson in his opening press conference. "I am extremely delighted to be chosen as the leader of this great institution. We're at an extremely important time in our lives, not because of circumstances but because of where we are in history. We need land-grant institutions in a way that is almost unique ... so we can continue to be competitive in a world market.

"We at Clemson University must make our own priorities to lead us into the 21st century. We must begin by making ourselves visible in the state, then we must focus on the global perspective of the university and what we can accomplish in that arena."

Board of Trustees President Louis P. Batson declared that the long selection process had discovered a man who knows what he wants. "Max Lennon is a good planner, a deep thinker, and a man ready for the challenge. He is restless without being impatient."

Lennon said the early part of his administration will consist of familiarizing himself more closely with Clemson's programs. "It would be presumptuous of me to come in here with a set of priorities," he said. "In the academic community you build on the strengths of the institution, and my first business has been learning about those strengths. I'll be calling for help from the students, faculty, administrators, alumni and the rest of the Clemson family to make sure our priorities are in order."

Lennon is active in many councils and commissions, including the American Society for the Advancement of Science; the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges and the National Dropout Prevention Fund.

Lennon began his teaching career at N.C. State in 1966 when he served as a graduate assistant professor. In 1970 he moved to Lubbock, TX, where he served as an assistant professor of animal science at Texas Tech University. He remained at the Texas institution as an assistant dean and associate dean in the College of Agriculture until 1980. On the first day of this decade he became the chairperson in the department of animal husbandry at the University of Missouri. He served as Dean of the College of Agriculture at Missouri until 1983, when he moved to Ohio State as vice president for agricultural administration.

Lennon is married to Ruth Carter Lennon and they have two children, Daniel Ray (24) and Robin (22).

Max Lennon is in his second full academic year as Clemson President.

WE'RE GOOD GUYS.

As a South Carolina company, we're always a little surprised when people here don't know who we are or, perhaps, what we do. Maybe we've just been too quiet. At the risk of bragging, we'd like to point out that Chem-Nuclear is important to our state.

We provide a service that protects the health and safety of South Carolinians. Our facility in Barnwell County allows hospitals, research facilities, and electric utilities to use nuclear materials without damaging our environment.

All those organizations do vital work—but in doing so they produce wastes with low levels of radioactivity. Chem-Nuclear disposes of those wastes so that they will never create a hazard. In fact, we are so careful and our work is monitored so stringently that the air, water, and land around our facility have no more radioactivity than your own back yard.

When you use electricity, take medication, receive one of several lifesaving, high-tech medical treatments, or even read a newspaper, you benefit from a process that produces low level radioactive waste. Chem-Nuclear exists only to dispose of the waste created by our modern way of life. We're good guys.

Bobby Robinson

A successful athletic program is usually the result of many factors, the most important being a well qualified leader heading up the entire program. At Clemson, continued success in all facets of athletics is evidence of the quality of leadership that has been found over the past few years under Athletic Director Bobby Robinson.

Last year was Robinson's most successful since taking over at the helm in March of 1985. In fact, it was one of the most successful years in the history of Clemson athletics.

Both major revenue sports, football and men's basketball were involved in post-season play in 1986-87, as were baseball and 12 other teams. In other words, out of 18 sports offered at Clemson, 15 were involved in some sort of post-season play.

In football, the Tigers finished the season ranked 17th in the AP poll and took a trip to Jacksonville, FL, where they defeated Stanford in the Gator Bowl.

The 1986-87 basketball squad became the most successful in school history as they finished the season ranked 13th and advanced to the NCAAs for just the second time in the school's history.

The Clemson baseball team ended its season with a number-10 ranking and also traveled to the NCAA baseball tournament. The golf and tennis teams also received bids to the NCAAs, making Clemson one of just five schools to have these three spring teams participating in NCAA post-season play.

The success of the three major sports (football, basketball, and baseball) made Clemson one of only two universities (UCLA was the other) to have all three ranked in the top 20 in the final polls.

Robinson's continued success is a result of his great commitment to being the best — in competition, in academics and in facilities. Last season is evidence of the program moving towards the best in competition, but Clemson athletics is also taking strides towards being the best in the two other areas.

In academics, Clemson student - athletes had an outstanding year. Over 65 athletes had 3.0 or better grade point ratios either semester, with the football team having three players named to the Academic All-ACC team. Six students were named to various academic All-America teams, the most ever for one season.

In the area of facilities, Robinson has also enjoyed success. Renovations over the past few years have included the Strength Training Center, one of the finest in the country; Tiger Field, home of the Clemson baseball team; and the West End Zone locker room complex in Memorial Stadium. New facilities include a new activities room in Death Valley, an indoor tennis facility, and new permanent soccer stadium on Riggs Field. In addition to all of this, a continuing maintenance program for all facilities and practice areas has been established.

From a university perspective, Robinson envisions the athletic department as being one of 49 departments on campus, equal to English, accounting, and the others. "We believe the athletic department is a viable, important part of the mission of Clemson University," says Robinson, "as athletic competition provides a common bond for students, faculty, staff, and friends."

Under Robinson, the athletic department has continued support of the university. Band uniforms and travel, the educational enhancement fund (coordinated with the Athletic Council) are some of the areas that have been developed.

Robinson was born in Columbia, SC and attended A.C. Flora High School. During his high school career, he was a point - guard for the basketball team and a third baseman in baseball. He also played golf competitively, and was a scratch golfer at one time. Robinson did not play any high school sports as a senior because of a heat stroke suffered in the summer of 1963. He graduated from A.C. Flora in 1964 and then enrolled in Furman University.

Robinson was graduated from Furman with a B.S. degree in business and political science in 1968. He was the president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity chapter at Furman. After he was graduated from Furman, Robinson worked in his family's laundry and dry-cleaning business for two years.

Robinson came to Clemson in 1970, not in athletics, but in the housing office. After three years, he moved across campus to serve as an administrative assistant in the athletic department. "I started at Clemson in the housing office, but I came to Clemson with the intention of working in athletics," said Robinson. "No opening existed at the time, so I had to wait until there was one."

After serving the athletic department in various capacities, he became business manager in 1975. Two years later he was named assistant athletic director and in 1980 he became associate AD. He held that title for four years, and his area of responsibility moved to primarily football and basketball.

While serving his administrative duties, Robinson found time to coach the Clemson golf team between 1975 and 1983. During his time as the head coach, Clemson won its first ACC title in golf and three times the Tigers participated in the NCAA tournament. In 1983, his final season as the head coach, he guided Clemson to a number - five finish. Clarence Rose was one of three All - Americans to play for the Tigers during his tenure and he is now a successful member of the pro tour.

With Robinson's qualifications, it is easy to see why the Clemson athletic program enjoys continued success - he has done it all. He has been an administrator at all levels, he has worked in other areas in the university, he has been a head coach, and he has handled the budgetary aspects needed to run a $12 million program.

Robinson has confidence in his staff, his coaches, his athletes, and the facilities at Clemson University. "We have a solid base to work from, but if we are not moving forward, we are losing ground. We will work within university guidelines and expand our horizons. We want to be as good as we can as a vital part of the university and the state of South Carolina."

Danny Ford

One need only look at the history of the Gator Bowl to understand the degree of success Danny Ford has had in college football. He is the only man to serve as a head coach, assistant coach and a player in the history of that Florida-based bowl game, and he is one of the few head coaches to win there twice.

Overall he has had 19 winning regular seasons in his 20-year affiliation with the game, and his teams have won nearly 73 percent of the time. How has he done it? "When you go to a Clemson practice you sense almost a buddy-buddy relationship between the head coach and players," said CBS Commentator and former Notre Dame Head Coach Ara Parseghian during a recent broadcast. "He has the respect of his players and his players enjoy playing for him. He is a disciple of Bear Bryant."

Communication with his players past and present has always been a strength for Danny Ford. This past spring when the 1981 National Championship team was honored at Clemson over 50 of his former players from that team came back to campus. Certainly testimony to the comraderie of that team, but also a testimony to Ford, who has built Clemson into one of the top programs in America over the last 10 seasons.

Probably the most significant accomplishment on Ford's resume is the 1981 National Championship. His youthful accomplishments compare favorably to Mozart in terms of reaching goals at an early age. A look at past national champions indicates that the current Clemson mentor is the youngest coach in the history of the college game to win the Associated Press National Championship.

Ford took Clemson to the national title in 1981 at the age of 33 and now is the winningest coach in the history of the Atlantic Coast Conference on a percentage basis. Additionally, Ford is already seventh in total wins among ACC coaches.

And, the success has come against top competition. Ford has already gained more wins over AP top 20 teams and top 10 teams than any other Clemson coach in history and is the only coach in ACC history (eight years experience) to have a winning record against top 20 teams (top 20 when playing against Clemson).

Clemson fans are certainly happy Ford entered the profession because he has brought a solid program to among the finest in the nation. Now in his ninth full season at Clemson, his record of 66-23-4 (.731) is the sixth best winning percentage in college football among active coaches. Additionally, Clemson has the 8th best winning percentage in the nation over the last 10 years.

Between 1981 and 1984 Clemson had a 37-6-2 ledger, the fourth best winning percentage in America. The class of '84 was the third winningest in ACC history in terms of winning percentage, and no ACC class in the 34-year history of the league ever won more games in a four-year period.

In 1978 he was offensive coordinator for the 11-1 team that won the Gator Bowl over Ohio State, 17-15. The Gadsden, AL native was more than just the offensive coordinator in that game, however, as he had become the head coach of the Tigers on December 10 after Charley Pell had already left to go to Florida. The 30-year-old Ford made quite a celebrated beginning to his head coaching career with that victory over the Woody Hayes-coached Buckeyes. The nationally televised Clemson victory helped put the Tigers on the national football map and it began Clemson's climb to among the elite of college football.

In 1979, Ford's first full season as a head coach, he proved the victory in the Gator Bowl was no fluke as he took a team that had lost six players to the pros to an 8-4 record and another bowl game. Included in the eight triumphs in 1979 were a win at Notre Dame and a triumph over Georgia on the way to a Peach Bowl confrontation with Baylor.

Two years later Ford became the youngest coach in the history of the game to win the National Championship. Ford surprised the college football world by taking the unranked Tigers to three wins over top 10 teams and a perfect 12-0 record. Clemson handed Herschel Walker the only regular-season loss of his Georgia career, downed North Carolina in Chapel Hill in the only showdown of top 10 teams in ACC history, then defeated former National Champion Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

Danny Ford is America's sixth winningest active coach.

That obviously is the highmark of Ford's brief, but eventful career at Clemson as he was named national Coach-of-the-Year by UPI, the College Football Writers of America, the Walter Camp Foundation, the Football Coaches of America, and WTBS Television.

Despite the loss of many excellent players off the National Championship team, Ford led Clemson to the ACC title in 1982 and a 9-1-1 record. The 1983 team also followed with a 9-1-1 record, giving Clemson a 30-2-2 ledger between 1981 and 1983, the best record in college football.

In 1984 Clemson continued many successful streaks, as Ford ran a record home unbeaten stretch to 25 games, and an ACC winning streak to 20 games. Ford gained his 50th win at Clemson with a victory over N.C. State in Raleigh. It was just Ford's 65th game in Tigertown, a record for an ACC coach for swiftness in reaching that victory plateau.

Over the last two years he has taken Clemson to two bowls and has been the head coach in a bowl five times overall. Clemson has continued its streak of consecutive winning regular seasons to 10, an all-time ACC record. It is no coincidence that the streak began when Ford first arrived, 1977. Last year Clemson finished 17th in the final AP poll, won the ACC championship and the Gator Bowl.

A review of Ford's football past should help us understand why he has been so successful as a head coach. Another in a long line of former Bear Bryant players that has gone on to greatness in coaching, Ford played for the Bear between 1967 and 1969. He was Kenny Stabler's sophomore tight end as a starter in 1967, played that position in 1968 and moved to offensive tackle in 1969. Ford started all three years, was all-conference in 1969 and played on three teams that went to bowl games. In 1969 he was also a member of the All-SEC academic team, and served as the captain of the Alabama team.

After Pat Dye's coaxing, Ford remained at Alabama as a graduate assistant for the 1970 and 1971 seasons. He had already earned his B.S. degree in industrial arts and earned his master's degree in special education in 1971. Ford became a full-time aide for Bryant in 1972 and 1973. The Tide went to four bowl games while Ford was an assistant coach.

Clemson's current head man then accepted a position as an assistant coach under Jimmy Sharpe at Virginia Tech. He remained in Blacksburg for three seasons (1974-76) before coming to Clemson as offensive line coach in 1977. And, just 23 games later he was named head coach of the Tigers at the age of 30, the youngest active division I coach in the country. Nearly 40 years after hiring 31-year-old Alabama graduate Frank Howard, Clemson had hired 30-year-old Alabama graduate Danny Ford.

Football Staff

Miles Aldridge joined the Tiger coaching staff in June of 1985. A native of Kansas City, MO, Aldridge coaches the inside linebackers. He is responsible for recruiting in South Carolina, Florida, southern New Jersey, and the Philadelphia area. A 1971 graduate of Gardner-Webb College, he is in his 17th year of coaching. Aldridge began his collegiate coaching career at East Tennessee State; after that, he moved to Wichita State, Tulsa, and then Mississippi. Before arriving at Clemson, he served as linebacker coach at Duke for two seasons.

Wayne Bolt joined the Clemson staff on March 10, 1986 from Auburn. His responsibilities include coaching the tight ends and the kickoff return teams. Bolt's first season as a Tiger coach was a successful one as he coached an All-ACC tight end (Jim Riggs), and his kickoff return team led the nation in return yardage. Bolt has no recruiting responsibilities but he is director of the football dorm. He earned his bachelor's degree in Health and Physical Education at East Carolina in 1979. After working as a graduate assistant coach at East Carolina, he took the job as offensive line coach at the University of Wyoming.

Jack Crowe joined the Clemson staff on February 24, 1986, as the Tiger quarterback coach. He came to Clemson from Auburn, where he served as offensive coordinator under Pat Dye and coached Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson. He has also served in the offensive coordinator position at Wyoming and North Alabama and was both an assistant and head coach at Livingston University. Crowe received his undergraduate degree in chemistry from Alabama-Birmingham in 1970, and completed his master's degree in education from Livingston in 1973. The Fairfield, AL, native is responsible for recruiting in the Georgia, Virginia and Alabama areas this year.

Bill D'Andrea is one of the newest additions to the Clemson coaching staff, as he returned to the staff in 1986 from Southern Mississippi. Prior to that he was a graduate assistant coach at East Carolina, a full-time assistant at the University of Virginia, Massanutten Military Academy, Catawba College, and was a graduate assistant coach at Clemson. D'Andrea received his bachelor's degree from Indiana State in 1973, and completed his master's degree in 1975. He lacks only a few semester hours from receiving a second master's degree. He coaches the offensive tackles and recruits for the Tigers in North Carolina, Virginia Beach and northern New Jersey.

Tom Harper became Clemson's assistant head coach in February, 1981. Having served as defensive coordinator at North Carolina and Iowa State, his most recent stint in that same position was at Virginia Tech. He was also Wake Forest's head coach in 1972. Harper graduated from the University of Kentucky with his bachelor's degree in 1955 and received his master's degree from there in 1958. He is responsible for recruiting in South Carolina and New York. Six of the Clemson players he has coached have played pro football, including two who were NFL starters last year (William Perry and Jeff Bryant).

Larry Van Der Heyden has coached Clemson's offensive line for the past eight years, and he has coached an All-America guard three of the last four years. He recruits in South Carolina, North Carolina and western Pennsylvania. Van Der Heyden joined the Tiger coaching staff in January 1979, as he came from Memphis State where he was offensive coordinator for three years. He also served stints at Iowa State, Drake, Indiana State, East Carolina, and Virginia. He earned his B.A. and master's degree at Iowa State and lettered three years in football and baseball.

Woody McCorvey is in his fifth year of coaching Clemson receivers. For three years he was the Tigers' tight end coach, and for two of those seasons he coached the All-ACC tight end. He is in his second season as a wide receiver coach. He recruits in North Carolina and Florida. McCorvey came to Clemson from Alabama A&M where he was offensive coordinator for four years. The 1972 Alabama State graduate lettered four years in football at the school before earning his physical education degree. He then received a master's degree in health, leisure, and sports from the University of West Florida in 1977.

Bill Oliver is in his second season at Clemson as the defensive secondary coach. He also recruits for the Tigers in Florida, Alabama and Georgia. A native of Livingston, AL, he began his collegiate coaching career as defensive secondary coach at Auburn, and five years later was hired by the late Paul "Bear" Bryant to fill the same position at Alabama. His most recent stint, however, was with the Memphis Showboats of the United States Football League, where he served as senior defensive coordinator and secondary coach. Oliver was a member of the 1961 undefeated National Championship Alabama team, and he received his bachelor's degree in 1962.

Chuck Reedy has coached Clemson's running backs for the last nine years. He also has a heavy recruiting schedule covering South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and the New York-Long Island areas. The St. Augustine, FL, native earned two letters in football from Appalachian State, where he was a 1971 graduate in health and physical education. He came to Clemson from Kentucky on July 5, 1978. Reedy is the main reason Clemson has signed the top player in Jacksonville five of the past six years. Every running back with the exception of one who has started under Reedy at Clemson has been drafted by the Pros or has signed a free agent contract. This list includes Kevin Mack, 1985's AFC offensive rookie-of-the-year.

Tommy West is in his sixth season coaching the Clemson defensive and bandit ends. He is also in charge of recruiting for the Tigers in Florida and Georgia. Prior to coming to Clemson, West coached at Appalachian State until July of 1982. The Gainesville, GA, native earned his B.S. degree in health education from the University of Tennessee in 1975 after lettering three years in football and baseball. A fine all-around athlete, West was drafted out of high school by baseball's Chicago Cubs.

IPTAY

On a hot muggy 1934 August day within the town of Clemson, Dr. Rupert H. Fike wrote a letter to Clemson football coach Jess Neely which began, "Coach last night we had a little meeting at our house and organized the IPTAY Club (I Pay Ten a Year)."

Since that day in 1934, IPTAY has revamped its name to I Pay Thirty a Year. From the early days when memberships were often paid in eggs and fresh vegetables, IPTAY has annually been one of the top organizations of its kind in America. Today, over 20,000 active members support IPTAY annually, and it is this scholarship fund-raising organization that is a prime reason for Clemson's ranking among the nation's elite in football and all sports. Clemson recently completed its most successful year ever athletically as 10 teams finished in the Top 20 of their respective final polls, and seven teams won conference championships.

IPTAY's first and foremost goal is to annually insure the financing of a quality education for nearly 400 student-athletes, trainers, and managers. Countless numbers of success stories begin with the receipt of an IPTAY scholarship, and through the generous support of IPTAY members, Clemson University has been able to award the maximum number of scholarships allowed by the NCAA in Clemson's 18 men's and women's varsity sports. For the over 3,000 students who have been awarded IPTAY scholarships, and for those who are still to come, without a doubt IPTAY works for them.

Because of IPTAY's commitment to excellence both in the classroom and on the playing field, the ability to expand programs has enabled IPTAY to directly benefit the entire university family. In the fall of 1984, the IPTAY Athletic Academic Endowment Scholarship Fund was created to award financial support to students whose performance in the classroom warranted distinction.

The concept that supports the endowment is based on money donated by matching gift companies, as well as monies generated by television appearances and scholarship awards in such contests. What results from this endowment is one of the largest unrestricted scholarships in the history of Clemson. Perhaps the most exciting feature of the fund is its potential. As the years go on, the growth of the program will only be equalled by IPTAY's desire to work for Clemson.

Other contributions made possible to Clemson University through IPTAY include several capital improvement projects which have helped to give the university the best facilities in the nation.

Some of the current projects that are sponsored by IPTAY include an indoor tennis facility, as well as permanent soccer stadium. The indoor facility features four indoor courts, as well as permanent seating, and will be available for faculty, students, and staff when not in use by the varsity tennis teams. The soccer stadium will provide a home for the 1984 National Champions.

The Tiger Band sported new uniforms last fall. The uniforms, as well as all expenses for band travel, are sponsored by IPTAY. This commitment, of well over $200,000, allows the Tiger Band to strut its stuff in style, both home and away.

Although the success of IPTAY's programs and the financial management of its Board of Directors have enabled IPTAY to assist in other concerns of the university, the primary concern of IPTAY is in educating young people and in servicing the needs of its membership.

IPTAY sponsors one of the most progressive tutorial programs in the country, and at any time, any athlete is able to supplement his education through the use of tutors, or the impressive study hall program. A highly-trained academic advising staff helps the student-athletes prepare for a future, and to shape their tomorrow by studying today. Through these efforts, nearly a fourth of Clemson's student-athletes were on the honor roll in the spring semester of 1987.

Working for IPTAY members is one of the major goals of the IPTAY Board and the internal staff. Each IPTAY member receives personal service to their account, and is constantly kept abreast of the programs of Clemson through the IPTAY office. Every member receives thirty-five issues of the Orange and White each year. As the official publication of IPTAY, the Orange and White is exclusively distributed to IPTAY members, and features indepth coverage of Clemson athletics.

IPTAY is a part of Clemson in many ways. Through its various programs and contributions, the 20,000 members of IPTAY spread their support of Clemson throughout the entire university family.

Danny Ford is a frequent speaker at IPTAY meeting.

Clemson Coaches

In many ways 1986-87 was Clemson's most successful athletic year ever. The Tigers tied the ACC record for league championships in an academic year with seven (football, women's cross country, women's tennis, men's tennis, men's indoor track, women's swimming and golf) and this tied the mark held by North Carolina in 1980-81 and Maryland, 1964-65. Clemson's previous school mark was six in 1981-82.

Additionally, Clemson had 10 teams finish in the top 20 in the various national polls and an 11th was in the top 20 at one time or another. The most top 20 teams Clemson had previously in final polls over the course of an academic year was nine, established twice (1981-82 and 1982-83).

Clemson was successful in the major sports of football, basketball, and baseball and was one of only two schools in the nation to rank in the top 20 in football, basketball, and baseball in the final polls. UCLA was the only other institution to achieve this level of excellence in the three major sports and it is the first time Clemson has done it.

Emergency Services

The Clemson University Athletic Department provides the following for your safety and emergency medical needs:

1. Advanced cardiac life-support stations in four locations. (North stands, Upper North deck, South stands, Upper South deck). These units are staffed with skill-care nurses, physicians, cardiologists, internists, paramedics, and EMTs.

2. Mobile units of EMTs and paramedics are strategically located throughout the entire stadium.

3. Ambulances with life-support equipment are available in North stand and South Stand areas and have prearranged routes for evacuation to local hospitals.

Learn to recognize these personnel and facilities.

WHAT TO DO IF EMERGENCIES ARISE

Please step back and give the organized stadium EMS personnel room to work. Well-intentioned attempts to help by untrained persons interfere with the efficiency of the EMS system. If you have basic or advanced training in specific life-support methods, make your qualifications known and offer your help. Untrained personnel can be frequently more harmful than helpful.

MEDICAL ADVICE FOR FANS

If you have a pre-existing medical or health problem, please check with your personal physician and obtain his advice before attending games. Many emergencies occurring at the stadium do so because of prior existing conditions. Use common sense in dressing, eating, drinking and physical exertion. Be certain that you have identification on you as to the diagnosis and what medications you are currently taking.

Be aware of warning signs of heart attacks: chest pain, chest tightness, shortness of breath, sweating, palpitations, fainting, nausea and vomiting.

Recognize that our most common serious medical problems at football games are heart attacks and allergic reactions to insect stings. Be aware that insect stings will always be very frequent at outdoor sporting events and should always be treated with immediate ice until advice can be obtained. If you have ever had a reaction to a bee or other insect sting, check with your personal physician as to whether you should carry a kit.

The stadium emergency phone number is (803) 656-2999.

Loyalty

It's the tie that binds families together as they support each other through joys and hardships. The dedication that keeps devoted friends close, even over great distances. The force that compels patriots to leave their homes to defend their country, sometimes in the face of incredible odds.

It's that special love that brings 80,000 fans, in full orange regalia, into Death Valley on Saturday afternoons to cheer the Tigers to victory, and it remains strong whether or not the victory is won.

Clemson alumni and friends may well hold a record for loyalty, a fierce and proud loyalty that is demonstrated not only on football Saturdays, but through solid support for academic excellence at Clemson University.

This support furnishes scholarship funds for outstanding students, provides resources to attract and retain distinguished classroom teachers, helps develop state-of-the-art technology and train students in its use, allows library acquisitions and expands the scope of research. In short, private support makes the difference between an "adequate" education and the superior education for which Clemson graduates have become known.

Pledge your loyalty to Clemson University's continuing academic excellence through a gift to the Clemson Loyalty Fund.

Providence people... making the vital difference.

Studies have shown that, even with the very latest and best methods of treatment, patients get well faster if their medical care is given with a large measure of love. The people of Providence Hospital provide that essential ingredient to the healing process.

Everyone, sick or well, needs the comfort of loving hands. But Christian concern and love are even more vital to the sick.

We see this demonstrated every day—thanks to Providence people. They care enough to take time to add old-fashioned love to the science of modern medicine.

Banks McFadden

By Kassie Kessinger

Today Clemson University is proud to honor not only the university's finest athlete in history, but truly the greatest athlete ever produced by the State of South Carolina. That individual is James Banks McFadden, one of just a few athletes in the nation to be named All-American in football and basketball in the same year, and the only South Carolina native to be named the nation's most versatile athlete.

When the decision was announced that McFadden's football and basketball jerseys would be retired, I'm sure the immediate reaction by many was why now? Why 47 years after the man's illustrious career had come to an end? Well I can assure you, it is all the more timely that McFadden's incredible accomplishments should be honored here today, for the mark he left as a Clemson athlete may very well be the reason the stands are overflowing today and the nation is looking in via CBS television.

In order for the sports fan of today to realize the significance of McFadden's double All-America status in 1939 one must revert to that time in history. Now folks, we are not talking about an age of mass communications with 24-hour cable sports programming seven days a week, 365 days a year and a multitude of sports prognosticators lauding top 20 teams and first-through-10-team All-Americans. No, you must imagine life with only a radio and newspaper as your sole contact with the nation's sports world and its heroes.

The national spotlight at that time fell on the likes of Notre Dame, Michigan, Southern Cal, Texas and other gridiron powers. The football bowls helped focus the attention on these mighty powers. And according to McFadden, Clemson's very first trip to a football bowl, the 1939 Cotton Bowl, was not only a personal highlight for him, but a major milestone in Clemson's football history.

McFadden was one of the top punters in the nation.

"The '39 Cotton Bowl really helped Clemson get a little national publicity," he said. "You wondered whether people really knew about you and how they could, since we were way out from anything else and certainly not in the metropolitan area like New York, California, and Chicago. Beating Boston College and its great coach Frank Leahy, who went to Notre Dame, was just a little footing that helped us. It laid the groundwork for more stepping stones."

Clemson's Director of News Bureau during McFadden's heyday was Joe Sherman. It was his battle in 1939 to get McFadden considered for major All-America honors that really underscores Clemson's fight to gain national attention as a "big college" and understand the significance of McFadden's athletic ability. Sherman received word that McFadden was being selected to the Little All-America football team, designed to recognize outstanding players at small colleges.

He had been fighting the "Little Clemson" image and was sick of hearing about "Little Clemson" upsetting Tulane, or "Little Clemson" did this or did that. So he wrote the editor of the publication naming the Little All-America team begging him not to name McFadden to the team. He emphasized Clemson's struggle to shake the "little" image and suggested that McFadden had an outside chance to make the Associated Press All-America team.

Although he thanked the editor, Frank Korsch, he felt it would kill McFadden's chances for the AP team. Korsh reluctantly agreed to leave McFadden off the team, and sent this reply to Sherman: "I think you're nuts. Your boy doesn't have a ghost of a chance to make the big All-Americas. And yet I understand and appreciate your desire to get him there. And I understand, too, your resentment at always being little Clemson when your teams are doing the job they are against major opponents." Well the rest is history as McFadden was a consensus major All-American that year and Clemson was never referred to again as "little Clemson." In fact, Clemson has had a "big All-American" every year since 1977.

McFadden also earned selection to the College All-Stars and played in Chicago's Soldier Field against the professional champions that year. "From a personal standpoint playing in the all-star game was an opportunity to prove to myself and to others I was a pretty fair athlete," he recalled. "I was able to make a good showing as I scored one of the two touchdowns we had and I played a fine defensive game."

Later as a professional with the old Brooklyn Dodgers, McFadden led the NFL in total yardage and was second in yardage per try, both of which reassured his personal feelings that "maybe they were not wrong in selecting me as an All-American football player." He remains the only South Carolina individual to be inducted in the College Hall of Fame.

However, McFadden's most personal satisfaction to this day as a football player remains being selected Clemson's MVP by his own teammates. "To receive the Hamilton Award (MVP) as selected by my teammates really meant more to me than the All-America certificate. They knew me, the people choosing All-Americans didn't, but my teammates knew me for four years. That meant something."

McFadden owns several distinctive firsts in Clemson's athletic history and not just as a football star. He also led Clemson to its first and only basketball conference championship in history, the 1939 Southern Conference Championship. Banks posted a three-year scoring average of 12.9 during the days when teams were averaging 35-45 points a game.

"There is a lot of pride in winning the only basketball conference championship Clemson's ever won," he said. "I felt better about myself in basketball earlier than I did in football. Being selected an All-American basketball player was something unbelieveable. They didn't have all those teams back then, you were just one of the top 10 players in the United States at that time.

"Again, I still had the feeling in the back of my mind that people hadn't seen a lot of me from other sections of the country so maybe I wasn't so deserving, but I certainly was blessed with a lot of help from a lot of great teammates, great coaching, and great support from my family and friends."

The ultimate milestone in McFadden's incredible athletic career also occurred in 1939. He was chosen the nation's most versatile athlete. In addition to his athletic prowess on the gridiron and basketball court, he was a magnificant track champion.

Many claim him still the finest all-around track star to be produced by the State of South Carolina. He ended his collegiate track career by capturing three state events in state-record fashion. During his collegiate career the Tigers were state champions twice, as he recorded 28 first-place finishes, 18 seconds, 13 thirds and two fourths.

"Then, I didn't comprehend the national awards," he said. "It meant very little to me as things were happening so fast. I just didn't know what it all meant, until I had a chance to sit down after World War II and start reminiscing a little bit about my career at Clemson and think about just what did these particular things mean. When you're talking about the whole United States, it still doesn't sink in deep enough."

Yes, when you are talking about the whole United States, to be singled out as the nation's elitist athlete, that is indeed hard to imagine no matter where you come from. But for this 6-3, 165-pound scrawny kid from Great Falls, SC no one could have predicted greatness for him on first appearance, especially his former mentor Coach Frank Howard.

"I never will forget the first time I saw him," Howard snickered. "We were out on the old football field and he came strolling over. I looked at him and he looked like a crane. He was a big, tall, skinny boy. I said to myself, 'Good gracious alive, I wonder why Coach (Jess) Neely ever gave this boy a scholarship.' But as time went on he improved considerably."

There have been several strong influences in McFadden's development over the years, but none as powerful as his high school football coach who also happened to be his half-brother, Tom Wallace.

"As a little shaver I was taught to do the best with what the good Lord gave me and anything less than that wasn't good enough. My half brother drilled that into me and then the other coaches picked that up and instilled it into me. It didn't come easy. Tom was very hard on me, but he took me aside after high school and said if I worked hard I could be an All-American." Unfortunately, he died of a brain tumor, never to see his kid brother realize his prediction.

McFadden was a standout center on Clemson's 1939 Southern Conference Champions.

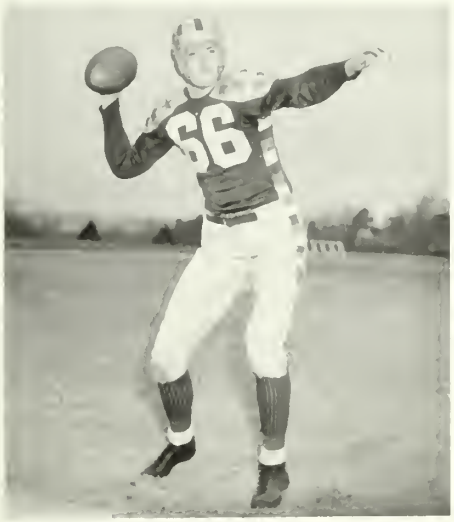
McFadden credits his wife, Aggie, and former mentor Jess Neely as the two other strong influences and dearest people to his heart. "Since my college graduation my wife has been the biggest influence in my life," he said. "She backed me up in every decision whole heartedly. She did a terrific job in raising four beautiful girls."

And it is perhaps having these family members and the many friends and former teammates on hand to witness this day of recognition that may put all this in focus for this gentleman from Great Falls, SC. "It's good, very rewarding and a pleasing thing to see these things did transpire," McFadden allowed. "I know it is a tremendous honor, but I've been so blessed in so many different ways.

"It brings back a lot of memories. So much time has elapsed, that I don't know what feeling to get toward the ceremony September 19. It has let me reminisce more than I usually do. But we are talking about ancient history; when you graduate you are history.

"We are very proud of it. We talk about it, we enjoy it, but that is past and we are thinking now about the future, and we love what's happening to Clemson University. I know I am from the past, the future is just great, and we had a part of the past and we move along."

So it is indeed a fitting tribute to honor one "Bonnie" Banks McFadden today before the multitude of fans on hand and those tuning in by way of television. His day of recognition couldn't have come at a better time, as Clemson University Athletics glistens in its finest hour, the spotlight falls on the player most responsible for bringing Clemson into national focus.



The parameters for retiring jersey uniform numbers has changed somewhat over the years. For one, it wasn't a common practice in years' past. People just didn't retire numbers years ago, save the New York Yankees. The Celtics didn't start until the 1960s.

In general to have a jersey retired at Clemson the person first must be a graduate of the university. Second, he must bring national honor to Clemson University and make a unique contribution to the program in terms of his or her accomplishments. Finally, he must be a fine citizen on and off the field during his or her career, and for a period of time after graduation from the university.

McFadden is the second Clemson football player to have his jersey retired. Steve Fuller is the only other, as no one will ever wear his number-four. McFadden's number-66 will be hung up forever in football and his basketball jersey number-23 will also be retired.

"Clemson prepared me well for the NFL in all areas of my life. Danny Ford and his program were concerned about my play on the field and how I coped with the everyday problems of life. I am still close to the program. We had a reunion last year and I stayed a week. The administrators don't forget you after you leave. I came back a couple of years after my playing days were over to get my degree and I still received the tutoring aid I had when I was playing. It's always great to come back to my alma mater."

Jeff Davis, Leading Tackler, Tampa Bay Bucs

Cliff Austin
Position: Running Back
Years at Clemson: 1978-82
Pro Career: New Orleans Saints, 1983
Atlanta Falcons, 1984-present

Now in his fifth year in the NFL, Cliff Austin is in his fourth year as a solid reserve running back for the Atlanta Falcons. In 15 games last year, he carried the ball 62 times for 280 yards and a 4.5 average per carry. He also had three receptions for 39 yards. Austin was an All-ACC selection for Clemson in 1982 and was a starter on the 1981 National Championship team. He set the Clemson single game rushing record with 260 yards against Duke in 1982.

Jeff Bostic
Position: Center
Years at Clemson: 1977-79
Pro Career: Washington Redskins, 1980-present

Jeff Bostic is in his eighth year in the NFL, all of which have been spent with the Washington Redskins. Originally signed by the Philadelphia Eagles as a free agent in 1980, the Redskins picked him up after the Eagles released him that year. After spending his first year with the club as a reserve, Bostic became a starter in his second year and is one of the original "Hogs" of the Washington offensive line. He was a starter for the 1982 and 1983 Redskins Super Bowl teams and was an All-Pro selection in 1983. As a collegiate player, Bostic helped the Tigers to three straight bowl appearances and was an All-ACC selection as a senior.

Joe Bostic
Position: Offensive Guard
Years at Clemson: 1975-78
Pro Career: St. Louis Cardinals, 1979-present

Now in his ninth season in the NFL, Joe Bostic was a third-round draft choice for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1979. He was honored as a 1979 All-Rookie Team selection and has been a starter his entire professional career. The Cardinals' player-representative to the NFL Players Association, Bostic had started 45 consecutive games before sustaining a knee injury in last season's 13th contest. Going into the 1987 season, his 113 games played ranks first among active Cardinals. While at Clemson, Bostic was a driving force on Clemson's 1977 and 1978 Gator Bowl teams, as well as an All-ACC and All-America selection each of those two years.

Jeff Bryant
Position: Defensive Tackle
Years at Clemson: 1978-81
Pro Career: Seattle Seahawks, 1982-present

Jeff Bryant is in his sixth year as a starter for the Seahawks and is one of the most durable players in the franchise's history. He was a first-round draft pick in 1982 and made the All-Rookie team that year. He had started every game in his career until he was injured midway through last year. In 12 games last season he had 42 tackles and four quarterback sacks. His career sack total of 37.5 ranks second on the all-time Seahawk list. While at Clemson, Bryant was a defensive leader on the 1981 National Championship team, and he earned All-ACC and second-team All-America honors that year.

Jerry Butler
Position: Wide Receiver
Years at Clemson: 1975-78
Pro Career: Buffalo Bills, 1979-present

Jerry Butler is in his ninth year as a starter for the Bills. Despite missing all of 1984 with a knee injury and the last five games of last year with a broken leg, Butler is closing in on Buffalo's all-time reception and receiving yardage records. In his career, Butler has caught 278 passes for 4301 yards, a 15.5 yard average. The fifth player chosen (earliest in Clemson history) overall in the 1979 draft, Butler was the 1979 AFC Rookie-of-the-Year, and he still holds the NFL rookie receiving record for a game when he had 10 catches for 255 yards and four touchdowns against the Jets in 1979. He was a two-time All-ACC player at Clemson and was regarded as perhaps the finest receiver in the nation during his All-America senior season.

Dwight Clark
Position: Wide Receiver
Years at Clemson: 1975-78
Pro Career: San Francisco 49ers, 1979-present

Dwight Clark is in his ninth season as a starter for the 49ers and is the team's all-time leading receiver with 482 regular season receptions. A 10th-round draft pick in 1979, Clark went on to earn Pro Bowl honors in 1982 and 1983. He led the NFC in receptions in 1981 and in receiving yardage in 1982. In 1982 he also led the NFC in receptions and was named the NFL Player-of-the-Year by Sports Illustrated. Clark has been a member of two Super Bowl championship teams during his career at San Francisco. While at Clemson, Clark caught 30 passes in his career and teamed with Jerry Butler at the wide receiver position. He also played in two bowl games.

Jeff Davis
Position: Linebacker
Years at Clemson: 1978-81
Pro Career: Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 1982-present

Jeff Davis is in his sixth year with Tampa Bay, and he is beginning his second season as the team captain. Last year he was in on 136 tackles to lead the team in that category for the third straight year. He also had three passes broken up, one interception, six fumbles caused, and one fumble recovery. A fifth-round draft pick in 1982, Davis has become an emotional leader for the Bucs just as he was for Clemson's 1981 National Championship team. The holder of numerous Clemson defensive records, including tackles in a game (24) and a season (175), Davis was the ACC Player-of-the-Year and a consensus All-American in 1981.

Terrence Flagler
Position: Running Back
Years at Clemson: 1982-86
Pro Career: Drafted by San Francisco 49ers, 1987

Terrence Flagler had one of the best seasons in Clemson history in 1986 when he stepped into the tailback position for injured Kenny Flowers. He broke Flowers' Clemson single season rushing record with 1258 yards and was a Football Writers Association first-team All-American, as well as a first-team All-ACC selection. His 6.6 yards per carry average was third in the nation among players with at least 800 yards rushing, and he was in the top 30 in the country in scoring and all-purpose rushing. For his efforts, he was runner-up in the conference Player-of-the-Year balloting. The San Francisco 49ers made Flagler their first-round pick in this year's NFL draft. He was the 25th pick of the entire draft.

Kenny Flowers
Position: Running Back
Years at Clemson: 1982-86
Pro Career: Drafted by Atlanta Falcons, 1987

Kenny Flowers is Clemson's career rushing leader with 2914 yards despite the fact that knee and ankle injuries severely limited his effectiveness his senior season. As a junior in 1985, he set a Clemson single season rushing record with 1200 yards. In 1985, he was a first-team All-ACC selection and led the conference in touchdowns and scoring. In 1984, he was a Strength All-American. With injuries hampering him throughout the 1986 season, Flowers nevertheless amassed 528 yards rushing and five touchdowns. Last April, the Atlanta Falcons chose Flowers in the second round of the NFL draft, making him the 31st player taken overall.

Dale Hatcher
Position: Punter
Years at Clemson: 1981-84
Pro Career: Los Angeles Rams, 1985-present

Now in his third season as the Rams' punter, Dale Hatcher made an immediate impact on the NFL as a rookie. That year he led the NFL in net punting, was an All-Pro selection, and punted for the NFC in the Pro Bowl. Last year he had 97 punts for a 38.6 yard net average, and he dropped 26 punts inside the 20-yard line. He is Clemson's all-time punting leader and was a starter on the 1981 National Championship team as a freshman. In 1984 as a senior, Hatcher was a first-team All-ACC selection and a second-team All-American.

Andy Headen
Position: Linebacker
Years at Clemson: 1979-82
Pro Career: New York Giants, 1983-present

Andy Headen is currently in his fifth year with the Giants, during which time he has seen action as both a starting and reserve outside linebacker, as well as on special teams. A valuable all-around player who is equally adept at run and pass coverage, Headen played in all 16 regular season games last year, recording 40 tackles, 2.5 quarterback sacks, one forced fumble, and one interception. He earned his first Super Bowl ring with the Giants last season. In college, Headen was originally a quarterback, but he eventually settled in on defense at bandit end, a position he made famous at Clemson. He was a starter on the 1981 National Championship team and earned All-ACC honors in 1982.

Terry Kinard
Position: Free Safety
Years at Clemson: 1978-82
Pro Career: New York Giants, 1983-present

Terry Kinard is in his fifth year as a starter for the Giants. One of the finest free safeties in the league, Kinard missed two regular season games last year due to injury, but still recorded 59 tackles and a quarterback sack while picking off four passes and recovering two fumbles. The injury prevented him from playing in the Super Bowl. At Clemson, Kinard became the only two-time consensus All-American in the school's history, in addition to being Clemson's first unanimous All-American. A starter on the 1981 National Championship team, Kinard finished his illustrious collegiate career by being named National Defensive Player-of-the-Year by CBS Sports.

Kevin Mack
Position: Running Back
Years at Clemson: 1980-83
Pro Career: Cleveland Browns, 1985-present

Kevin Mack is in his third season with the Cleveland Browns after beginning his professional career with the L.A. Express of the USFL. In his first year in the NFL, he won AFC Offensive Rookie-of-the-Year honors in some polls after rushing for 1104 yards. Last season he fought injuries all year, but still amassed 665 yards rushing on 174 carries and 292 yards receiving on 28 receptions. He also scored 10 touchdowns. A member of one of the winningest classes in Clemson football history, Mack was a sophomore on the 1981 National Championship team. He led all ACC fullbacks in rushing as a senior in 1983 and was an all-conference choice.

William Perry
Position: Middle Guard
Years at Clemson: 1981-84
Pro Career: Chicago Bears, 1985-present

The most celebrated rookie in the history of the NFL two years ago, William Perry is in his third year with the Bears. On his way to being named to the NFL All-Rookie team in 1985, Perry became the heaviest player ever to score a touchdown on a set play, and he was a key factor in Chicago's drive to the Super Bowl title. Last year, Perry started all 16 regular season games, recording 84 tackles, including five quarterback sacks. While at Clemson, Perry was a three-time All-ACC selection and was the conference Player-of-the-Year as a senior in 1984. He was a freshman on the 1981 National Championship team, and he earned various All-America honors in each of the three seasons following that year. He is the ACC's all-time leader in tackles for minus yardage and quarterback sacks.

Johnny Rembert
Position: Linebacker
Years at Clemson: 1981-82
Pro Career: New England Patriots, 1983-present

Johnny Rembert was a fourth-round draft pick for the New England Patriots in 1983 and has been with the club ever since. After three seasons as a reserve, he moved into a starting linebacker slot last year and did a little of everything for the team. He was third on the team in tackles with 103, including 72 first hits and four quarterback sacks. He also had one interception, two passes broken up, and a team-high six forced fumbles. He even recovered a fumble for a touchdown, his third score in two seasons. At Clemson, Rembert played on the 1981 National Championship team and was a third-team All-American in 1982, when he set a Clemson record for interceptions by a linebacker with five.

Perry Tuttle
Position: Wide Receiver
Years at Clemson: 1978-81
Pro Career: Buffalo Bills, 1982-83
Tampa Bay Buccaneers, 1984
Atlanta Falcons, 1984
Winnipeg Blue Bombers (CFL), 1986-present

Perry Tuttle is in his second season with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Football League. He was a first-round NFL draft choice in 1982 but began playing in the CFL last year, when he was fourth in the league in receiving. In 18 regular season games, he caught 83 passes for 1373 yards, a 16.5 yard average, and eight touchdowns. The native of Winston-Salem, NC was fourth in the CFL in receptions in 1986. He is continuing at a similar pace through this year. A star receiver for Clemson's 1981 National Championship team, Tuttle was an All-ACC player in 1980 and 1981 and an All-American in 1981. He is still Clemson's career leader in receptions and reception yards.

Rule Changes

In the 1950 Clemson-Wake Forest game the Deacons scored on the last play of the contest to bring the score to 13-12 in favor of the Tigers. On the ensuing extra point, Bob Patton blocked the kick and the Tigers won the game.

An examination of the stories on that game gives no discussion as to why the Wake Forest coaching staff did not go for two points and try to win the game. The reason: it was not in the rule books. There was no decision to be made by the Deacon coaches because the two-point conversion rule was not put on the books until 1958.

The following is a list of significant rule changes in various areas of the game that will show you how far the college game has come in the last 110 years. Just imagine a game with 25 players on each team, playing on a 120 yard field, or allowing a player to conceal the ball under his jersey. Those were the rules in the early years of college football. Here are some interesting rule changes in a chronological listing.

The Field

1876 110 yards by 53⅓ yards. Uprights 18½ feet apart; crossbar 10 feet high.
1912 Field 120 yards by 53⅓ yards including two 10-yard end zones.
1927 Goal posts moved back 10 yards, to end line.
1959 Uprights widened to 23 feet 4 inches from 18½ feet.

Points

1869 All goals count 1 each.
1884 Safety 2, touchdown 4, goal from field 5.
1898 Touchdown 5, goal after TD 1.
1912 Touchdown 6.
1958 1 point & 2-point conversion (from 3-yard line).
1984 Extra point may be eliminated at end of game if both captains agree.

1873 Each team consisted of 20 players.
1876 Each team consisted of 15 players.
1880 Each team consisted of 11 players.
1894 Number of players permitted behind the neutral zone and in motion at the snap changed from 10 to 3.

1947 One substitute could enter when the clock was running and substitutions were unlimited when the clock was stopped.
1953 Two-platoon abolished and players allowed to enter the game only once in each quarter.
1964 Unlimited substitutions with the clock stopped and two substitutions with the clock running.
1965 Platoon football returns. Unlimited substitutions between periods, after a score or try, when Team B is awarded a first down, or when after a kick, Team A is awarded a first down.
1974 Substitutes must be in for one play and replaced players out for one play.

Officials

1869 No officials ... captains controlled the game.
1883 Each judge an alumnus of the participating teams and the referee an alumnus in championship games.
1983 Seventh official added with back judge and field judge optional.

Passing Game

1906 One forward pass legalized behind the line if made 5 yards right or left of center. Ball went to opponents if it failed to touch a player of either side before touching the ground.
1907 Forward pass out of bounds belongs to opponents where ball went out of bounds.
1910 Pass interference doesn't apply 20 yards beyond the line of scrimmage. Passer must be 5 yards behind the line of scrimmage.
1916 Guards and tackles required to be 5 yards in backfield to be eligible receivers.
1941 Fourth-down forward pass incomplete in end zone no longer a touchback. Ball goes to opponent at spot where put in play.

This Day in Tiger Football

by Foster Senn

For Clemson linebacker Jeff Davis, this day in 1981 was two hours and thirty-five minutes of ecstasy. Davis: 223 lbs. of muscle, owner of a 485 lb. bench press and a palate for opposinng running backs. Jeff Bryant, Dan Benish, Terry Kinard, Tim Childers, et al — Davis' men were daring the defending national champion Georgia Bulldogs to try to move the ball on the ground or the air. But Herschel Walker and Buck Belue met the Tigers from close range all day.

At 3:40 that day, the near hoarse fans at Death Valley were still cheering, several minutes after the 13-3 Clemson triumph was complete and Georgia's 15-game winning streak was broken. Maybe they appreciated the great effort that had gone into the victory; maybe they had some idea this might just be the Tigers' year.

This contest had an enormous pregame build-up. On the day of the game in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, featured along with two stories about the game, was a full-color picture of a Clemson student with an orange shirt and 15 orange paws painted on her face. The coed was Jane Robelot, now the co-anchor on WSPA's Eyewitness News.

"We beat the defending national champions; shut them down, I mean," Davis said. The Tigers recovered four fumbles and intercepted Bulldog quarterback Buck Belue five times. Walker was held below four yards per carry, and he fumbled three times, losing two. He had fumbled only once the entire previous season.

"The Clemson defense was aggressive, harassed us, and intimidated us," Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said. "They deserved to win the football game. I thought we came in here ready to play and intense, but at times we were simply intimidated by their defense."

Leading the intimidating were Davis, of course, who now plays for the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, and his sidekick Danny Triplett. Each had 11 tackles. However, the Clemson honor roll was long that day. In addition to the turnovers, the defense sacked Belue six times and twice stopped Walker on important third-down-and-two attempts in the second half. Even miniature defensive back Hollis Hall (158 lbs.) had 10 tackles.

The trampling Tiger defense was not the only factor affecting the Bulldogs, according to Walker. Chalk up another one for Death Valley. "I came in here knowing it would be loud and that Clemson would hit me hard, but to me the noise was the biggest factor," Walker said. "I know I didn't concentrate as well because of it."

Clemson's Homer Jordan, an Athens native, threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to a diving Perry Tuttle in the second quarter for the Tigers' first score. Donald Igwebuike kicked a 39-yard field goal in the second quarter and a 29-yarder in the fourth quarter to wrap up the Tigers' scoring.

Clemson handed Herschel Walker the only regular season loss of his career on this date in 1981.

1981	Georgia	H	13-3

September 19 has been a great day for Clemson. The Tigers are undefeated on this day, compiling seven victories, including the first game in Memorial Stadium, which was on this day in 1942.

1936 — The Tigers cruised by Presbyterian 19-0 at Riggs Field in Clemson's first game of the season.

1942 — Clemson crushed Presbyterian 32-13 as 5,500 tried out the new Clemson stadium. Attendance was low partly because gasoline war rations limited traveling. Butch Butler starred for Clemson, scoring three touchdowns.

1953 — As rainfalls go, the one on this night had to be nationally ranked. Rain fell hard throughout Clemson's 33-7 victory over Presbyterian, and the effects were dramatically felt on the field. Clemson fumbled 14 times, which still stands as a record. Coach Frank Howard said, "If we have another rain like that, I might call on the varsity swimming team."

1959 — Ironically, the game this day between Clemson and North Carolina was billed as the showdown for the ACC championship, but it was the first game of the season for either team. The 12th-ranked Tar Heels were under new coach Jim Hickey, who was appointed when legendary head coach Jim Tatum had died suddenly in July. The 18th-ranked Tigers jumped out to a 14-0 lead and then held off a late Tar Heel rally for a 20-18 victory, Clemson's first ever victory at Chapel Hill and the 100th of Frank Howard's career.

1964 — Clemson crushed Furman 28-0 at Death Valley, scoring on the first and last plays of the game. Sam Wyche, now head coach for the Cincinnati Bengals, was the quarterback for Furman.

1970 — Tommy Kendrick completed 15 passes on 21 attempts to lead the Tigers to a come-from-behind 27-17 victory over Virginia at Death Valley. John McMakin and Pete Galuska caught touchdown passes for the Tigers.

"I've worked every day I can remember. Any day I didn't work, I don't remember it. And the way I see it, I'll be working another 20, 25 years. When I finally get to retire, know what I'm gonna do?...Nothing. No, I mean it. Nothing. Oh, I might go fishing. Maybe. But what I'm really planning on doing is absolutely nothing. Nothing."

Death Valley Anniversary

By Foster Senn

The first game at Clemson Memorial Stadium was played 45 years ago today, inaugurating one of the finest stadiums in the country, and establishing a now celebrated tradition with a seemingly insignificant run down a hill.

The 40 Clemson players on the 1942 sophomore-dominated team broke in the new stadium with a 32-13 victory over Presbyterian that Sept. 19 afternoon at 1:55 P.M..

The debut of the stadium came after a year of work by many people, including Howard and his players. "I remember Coach Howard saying, 'Some day you'll be glad you worked on the stadium,'" recalled Bill Hunter, a member of the 1942 team and a practicing physician in Clemson the last 34 years. "We didn't think about it then, but now I always hear the old players talk about working on the stadium. They're proud of it."

On game day, work on the stadium was still going on. "The thing I remember most," said Clemson Coach Frank Howard, "was that we hung the gates at 1:00 p.m. and played at 2:00 p.m. We barely finished the stadium in time to have the game."

Howard gave his team an inspiring mission in his pregame talk, according to Hunter. "Coach Howard said, 'Boys, this is the first game in the new stadium. Clemson will be playing on this field for many years to come. I want us to form a reputation that nobody wants to play at Clemson. I want to win all of them on this field.'"

The extremely enthused Tiger squad, then using some geometry, unknowingly began what is now the most celebrated entrance in sport: running down the hill. "We got dressed and came out of Fike Field House," Hunter said. "The closest way to the stadium was the hill so we came down the street and ran down the bank the closest way — not down the middle like they do now, but the closest way, which was from Fike diagonally towards our sidelines.

"The first time it was exciting to have those Clemson people there. That student body stood up and hollered. That made you feel good.

"It was no different than it is now for the football team. It will always be a great feeling to run down the hill."

The determined Tigers had an easy time winning. Butch Butler gained 192 yards for the Tigers to lead the cause. He scored the first points ever at Memorial Stadium, bolting 75 yards in the first quarter for a touchdown.

The TIgers were proud after that game, according to Hunter. "We were mighty glad about winning that first game," he said. "We talked about that tradition Coach Howard had discussed. Charles Wright and Hawk Craig, who were the captains, spoke about that winning home tradition."

Only 5,500 people attended that first game at the stadium, because of the wartime gas rationing.

Bill Hunter was a starting guard for the Death Valley opener.

After that season, all of that 1942 team went into World War II. Two members of the team, wingback Harry Franklin and end John Dixon, were killed during the war. Many players distinguished themselves in the military such as Chip Clark, who flew bombers over Germany, and Hunter, who was a torpedo pilot off aircraft carriers, a fighter pilot, and a member of the famed Black Sheep Squadron for part of the war. Many of the players are now prominent in business and industry. One player, George Karamblas, earned a Ph.D. from M.I.T.

Just as Clemson has a home game today on Death Valley's 45th birthday, ironically, Clemson will also have a home game for the golden anniversary of the first game at Death Valley. On Sept. 19, 1992, Clemson will play Virginia Tech at Memorial Stadium, the stadium's 50th birthday. It will certainly be a special and proud day for all Clemson people, but especially for the members of the first team to play in the stadium.

"On the 25th anniversary of that game I invited all of them to come up here to my house," Hunter said. "Most of them came, and we talked well into the night.

"They are well aware they were first to play on the field. When you are the first to do something and it comes out to be a great tradition, that makes you feel proud. Particularly if it's Clemson."

The 1942 team ran down the hill in a different location for a functional reason on this date 45 years ago.

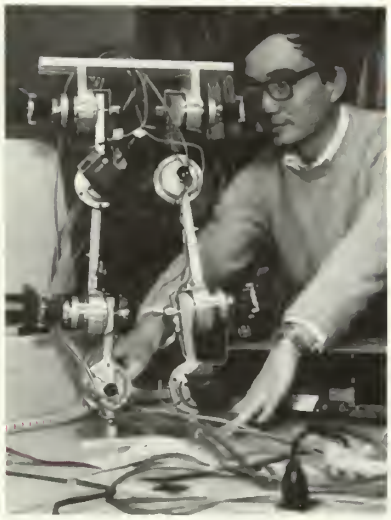
One Small Step for CURBi

By Mark Ford



They say it's the knees; always the knees.

In the old days, an athlete undergoing knee surgery often was lost for an entire season. Today, arthroscopic surgery can have him or her back within a matter of weeks.

But someday, an athlete may be able to return even sooner, thanks to new advances not in medicine, but in electrical and computer technology — the kind of technology being developed at Clemson.

Computerized mechanical braces, or exoskeletons, may be used to help athletes and others regain movement lost to injury or illness.

While technology that advanced has yet to be developed, an award-winning Clemson researcher has taken the first giant step: developing the country's first two-legged walking robot.

Presidential Young Investigator Yuan Zheng, associate professor of electrical and computer engineering, has developed a three-foot-tall pair of mechanical legs which have taken some of the first artificial steps around.

Zheng says "CURBi," short for Clemson University Robot Biped, is "the first biped that I am aware of in this country to walk on its own. Although many theoretical articles on the subject have been published, Clemson is the first to build a practical, working model."

The technology being developed by Zheng may prove to be the forerunner of great technological strides that could carry over into other areas, such as medicine and the nuclear industry.

Bipedal robots like CURBi could lead to the developing of walking devices to replace wheelchairs and crutches, allowing the physically impaired easier access to stairs and uneven outdoor terrain. These same systems could provide mechanized braces to restore movement in paralyzed arms and legs and perhaps spearhead the development of computerized artificial limbs.

Similar robots could one day replace humans in hazardous work conditions, such as those found in high-risk areas of nuclear power plants.

"Since many work areas are designed for humans only, multiple-legged or wheeled robots would have difficulty climbing ladders or moving around in small, confined or narrow areas with floors that aren't level," he says. "But biped robots could work in these areas and would prove especially beneficial under such conditions."

"Clemson has long been a national leader in coordinated robot arm research," says A. Wayne Bennett, head of Clemson's electrical and computer engineering department, "and Yuan Zheng's breakthrough in bipedal robotics certainly are an exciting development."

Zheng's research in coordinated biped robotics earned him the state's only Presidential Young Investigator Award for 1987, making him Clemson's third award winner in the National Science Foundation program's four-year history.

And to help him continue his research, the Savannah River Laboratory has provided Zheng with grants of more than $88,000 in hopes that CURBi's further development will prove especially useful to the nuclear industry.

Zheng says the next step is getting CURBi to climb stairs, and the scientist hopes to have perfected that by as early as next summer.

CURBi's relatively small steps now could ultimately prove giant leaps for all mankind.

Yuan Zheng adjusts CURBi's legs.

Kevin Johnson

by Willie Shearer

If there is any doubt that records are made to be broken, Clemson's Kevin Johnson, a rising junior on the Clemson golf team, is rapidly putting that doubt to rest. After only two seasons, Johnson, who hails from Pembroke, Massachusetts, is etching his name in the Clemson record books not only for individual tournament and single season performances, but, amazingly, for career marks as well.

After choosing Clemson over traditional national golf powers Ohio State and Wake Forest, Johnson entered Clemson as a freshman in August, 1985, with his guns blazing. He capped a successful slate of summer competition that year by qualifying for the U.S. Amateur Championship and making it to the final 16 of that tournament, this country's premier amateur championship and one of golf's original grand slam events. As a result of the year's successes, Johnson became the first player in the history of the Massachusetts Golf Association to win its Player-of-the-Year and Junior Player-of-the-Year awards in the same year.

When the spring golf season began at Clemson in January of 1986, Johnson stormed into it with an effort that would turn into the best freshman campaign in Clemson history (73.74).

In the summer of 1986, Johnson continued improving as he gained experience in several national amateur events. The highlight of his summer tour occurred when he became the first amateur ever to win the Massachusetts Open Championship.

Johnson was an All-American as a sophomore.

When the season got underway for the spring of 1987, it was clear that Johnson would continue his record-setting pace. He had won the South Carolina Intercollegiate in the fall with a four-under-par 212 total and was primed to help the team climb back to the top of the conference and into the nation's top 10.

Through the first four tournaments, Johnson played as well as, and probably better than, any other player in the nation. He strung together four straight top-four finishes and played all 10 rounds of the four tournaments at par or better, totaling 24 under par and averaging an incredible 69.6.

Although Johnson's pace slackened a bit through the second half of the season, he helped the Tigers to the ACC title, Clemson's second ever, and a sixth consecutive birth in the NCAA Championship at the Ohio State University Scarlet Course in Columbus, Ohio. There, the Tigers finished 11th, and Johnson scored a four-round total of three-over-par 291, good for a ninth-place finish, the highest ever by a Clemson golfer in NCAA play.

When the smoke cleared, Johnson had become the second Clemson sophomore ever to make first-team All-ACC and the first to earn All-America laurels, garnering a third-team spot. Also, he was chosen as one of six collegiate golfers to compete in the annual NCAA-Japan Golf Competition, to be held October 27-29, 1987, in Japan.

During the season, he set Clemson single season records with a 71.88 scoring average and six rounds in the 60's. In addition, his 72.85 career average ranks number one in Clemson history, and his next round in the 60's will be his 11th, tying him with Dillard Pruitt for the career record.

Looking strictly at Johnson's collegiate record, Clemson Athletic Director Bobby Robinson, a member of the NCAA Golf Committee, says Johnson is "probably the best player we've ever had at Clemson. Looking at him compared to the nation's other good college players, he's definitely one of the top 10 returning players in the country. He should be a first-team All-American this year, and he will definitely be the number-one rated player in the South region."

Clemson Golf Coach Larry Penley echoes Robinson's evaluation of Johnson on a national scale, saying, "He had as good a summer (in 1987) as any college player in the country. He sets high goals for himself and for the team, and that's why he is so good. He's also very team-oriented, which is another reason that he plays so well."

The summer has brought even more honors Johnson's way, highlighted on a trip to Cincinnati for the U.S. Public Links Championship. He survived 36 holes of medal play qualifying and five match-play contests before destroying his final match opponent by a 10 and 9 margin, the second largest margin of victory in Publinx history. Reflecting on his first national championship, Kevin calls the feeling "unbelievable," but he is quick to point out that his goal is to win more, saying, "That's what all the work is for."

Two weeks after his Publinx conquest, Johnson went to Benton Harbor, Michigan, for the Western Amateur, one of a handful of amateur events that rank just below the U.S. Amateur in prestige. At the Western, which amounts to two tournaments in one, Johnson shot a four-round total of one-under par 283 in the medal play segment of the tournament to qualify for the "Sweet 16," the match play portion.

His summer schedule concluded with the Cardinal Amateur in Greensboro, NC, in mid-August and the U.S. Amateur in Jupiter Hills, FL, at the beginning of September.

His confidence for this year is well-founded, as the Tigers return the top six players from the second most successful team in Clemson history. Kevin says, "We all had a good experience last year at Ohio State. Even though we didn't play very well, we still finished 11th. Everyone will have another year of experience, so we should have a good shot at winning it all this year."

Kevin Johnson can say that with the quiet conviction bred from determination, hard work, and confidence in himself and his teammates. With as much talent as the Clemson golf team has, no Clemson player should have to carry the team on his shoulders. But having an ambitious record-setting performer like Kevin Johnson will be an invaluable aid in the Tigers' drive to the top of the collegiate golf world.

Tiger Life

For the past 53 years thousands of you have displayed your unsurpassed loyalty to Clemson by making IPTAY one of the greatest athletic scholarship groups in America.

Now there are some individuals who want to make another unique effort for Clemson by providing an endowment to assure the future security and success of the Clemson Athletic Department.

Tiger Life is a program through which you can make an affordable investment over a few years to insure a sizable future gift to the Clemson Athletic Department.

Listed below are a few individuals who with a few others who wish to remain anonymous have arranged for gifts in excess of $2,000,000 to the Clemson Athletic Department Endowment.

Jack Crowe

By Foster Senn

If there is a typical path to college coaching, it probably goes something like this: play college football, coach a little while at the high school level, then move into college coaching.

Clemson quarterback coach Jack Crowe admittedly did not take the typical path. His went more like this: play high school football, enter college pre-medicine program in chemistry, take up high school coaching as a hobby after class, earn chemistry degree, forget medicine and become a top college coach.

Crowe is one of few major college football coaches who didn't play football in college. Not many coaches, however, have a distinguished record like this: offensive coordinator on Sugar, Cotton, Liberty and Tangerine Bowl teams at Auburn; offensive coordinator on Division II national championship finalist, Southeastern Conference winner of "Working Coach of the Year"; coach of pro football players like Lionel James, Brent Fullwood, and Bo Jackson.

Crowe's story is an interesting one, which could be titled, "How To Become a Top Football Coach on the Way To Medical School."

He was the quarterback on his high school team, but he then gave up playing football to pursue a medical career. "When I came out of high school, I had the opportunity to play football at a small college, but it was not where I wanted to go to school," he said. "I wanted to go into medicine. It's hard to get into Med School without a good undergraduate degree." Crowe thus decided to give up playing football and go to nearby University of Alabama-Birmingham to get his chemistry degree and work part-time in a medical lab as a move towards becoming a doctor and to pay for his college education.

Crowe still liked football a great deal, so as a hobby in the afternoons he became a volunteer football coach at his old high school, West End, in Birmingham. Crowe quickly advanced at his new hobby. By his senior season of college — while still a volunteer — he was offensive coordinator at West End, which advanced to the state AAAA championship that season.

It was time for Crowe to go to medical school but ... "I had gone to college planning on going to med school, but four years later I had helped coach a lot of wins and was tired of school," Crowe said. "With the success we had at the high school, I had a lot of offers to coach with the opportunity for quick advancement."

Crowe initially wanted to enter medical school.

Taking a break before going to medical school — or so he thought at the time — Crowe decided to go into coaching full-time, taking a job as offensive coordinator at Oxford, (AL) High. Oxford went undefeated both years he was there. "Even after the first couple of years of coaching, I still felt I would go back to medical school," Crowe said. "But football seemed so easy to move up in."

He thus decided to keep coaching a little while longer, moving to Livingston University as a graduate assistant. Crowe excelled again, moving up to offensive coordinator and then head coach in 1977. "I remember my time at Livingston I thought, 'Gosh, if I'm going back to medical school, I better go sometime.' Finally, I guess I figured out I wasn't going back to school.

"I thought about college coaching when I was in high school, but I discounted those possibilities when I didn't play in college. When Livingston offered me a job, I realized how far I had come in coaching. I wasn't excited about going back to school, and I looked how far I had come coaching. Finally, I said, 'I can do this!'

"Football had started out as a hobby, then it became an avocation, then a vocation. It wasn't an accident, but just a transition I didn't plan."

From Livingston Crowe moved on to North Alabama, then Wyoming, and then Auburn — all as an offensive coordinator — before coming to Clemson in 1986 as quarterback coach. When Crowe was at Auburn, the War Eagles just missed winning the national championship in 1983, as pollsters ranked Miami over Auburn after the Hurricanes upset Nebraska.

Crowe then took the job at Clemson. "I talked to Danny (Ford) and I felt comfortable with his goals," Crowe said. "I've thoroughly enjoyed my time here. Clemson is a great place to live, Danny is a great boss, it's a great university, and I've had the chance to coach good athletes.

"Clemson is a special place for a lot of reasons. The students here will always make it special. The program here is also special because of the assistant coaches and because of the head coach. Danny is a 'people person.' That's what the players respond to."

Crowe says there are two big reasons he enjoys his occupation. "I think coaching means different things to you at different times of your life," he said. "When you first start out, it's like playing. It's just another way to funnel your competitiveness.

"That still is a part of coaching later, but it's not the most important. There is the satisfaction of teaching, the influence you have over the players you're working with, and the fellowship of a staff and a team. If you didn't have that I wouldn't be coaching."

Football started as a hobby for Crowe.

Traveling With The Tigers

by Willie Shearer

Clemson football has come a long way since it first put a team on the gridiron in 1896, and it's gone a long way, too — 278,121 miles to be exact. That's the total number of miles Clemson's football teams have traveled to get to and from nearly a century's worth of pigskin contests not held in Clemson.

With the Tigers playing host to opponents no less than eight times in 1987, it is surprising to note that only 37 percent of Clemson's 844 games through the 1986 season were played at home, where the team has put together a .708 winning percentage (214-84-14).

That means that the Tigers have played 532 games, a staggering 63 percent, "on the road," where its 249-253-30 record translates to a .496 winning percentage. A substantial portion of these games, however, did not take place on the opposing teams' home fields; rather, they were played at "neutral sites." The Tigers' 59-37-9 record, a .605 percentage, in these match-ups is impressive.

Clemson's first home game didn't come along until the middle of its third season, when, on October 20, 1898, the Tigers somewhat inhospitably handled Bingham, 55-0. After that, it was two years to the day before Clemson had the chance to play host again, opening the 1900 season with a 64-0 trampling of Davidson.

Where were the Tigers spending their time in those early days? Try train stations and bus depots, more than likely, throughout North and South Carolina and Georgia. Although details of Clemson football's childhood and adolescence are sketchy, there's no doubt that the team spent the night of October 17, 1902, holed up in the train station at Lula, Georgia.

That story, according to Joe Sherman's 1978 publication, Clemson Tigers: A History of Clemson Football, involves Clemson's game at Georgia Tech. On the night before the game Clemson Coach John Heisman (he of trophy fame) sent a group of cadets from Clemson into the thick of the Atlanta nightlife to act as imposters for his football team.

While the authentic Tiger gridders peacefully whiled away the night in sleepy Lula, the impromptu bunch of cadet-actors conspicuously immersed themselves in the ocean of Georgia Tech fans at a campus night-spot and proceeded to enjoy to the fullest all the common and traditional elements of nocturnal collegiate activity. Naturally, word spread, bets were placed heavily on the Rambling Wreck, and the Tech football team grew confident, perhaps overly so.

Imagine its surprise when the well-rested Clemson football team, made up of significantly larger individuals than had been witnessed the night before and considered to be one of the most powerful teams in the South, chugged into town and laid a 44-5 thrashing on the Techsters.

Stories like that, however, are few and far between. Fortunately, legendary Coach Frank Howard has a vast and remarkably detailed memory of team travel for nearly 40 years through the middle of the century.

When he arrived in Clemson as an assistant coach in 1931, he recalls, things were very different — "very primitive," he says — for there were no athletic scholarships and a very small budget to operate on. Although train travel was common, he recalls times when he had to solicit the use of cars and pile four or five players in each automobile to make a trip.

By and large, however, the train was the popular mode of travel through the 1930s and -40s, and, according to Howard, over 5,000 people used to show up consistently to send the team off and welcome it home.

The train trips were long and slow, but they were still faster than by car. On the trip to the Cotton Bowl in 1940 the team stopped in Texarcana, TX, and met two Clemson fans who had driven five long days in hopes of attending the game. Their car had broken down, however, and they were stranded. Some team members learned of their fate when they got off the train for the stop and smuggled the two men on the train and took them all the way to Dallas.

Eventually, bus travel became one of the options, but it was too slow, even with a highway patrol escort. In fact, Coach Howard recalls one particular bus driver who lamented, "Coach, if you'd get rid of that patrolman, then I could get you there."

A remedy was on the way. The year 1947 was a monumental one because the Clemson football team began traveling by air that year. Economically, things were growing more prosperous then, so Coach Howard was able to purchase all the seats on an Eastern Airlines flight from Greenville to Boston, where the Tigers were to have their fourth meeting with Boston College at 8:30 PM on Friday, September 26.

Clemson first traveled by plane to Boston College in 1947.

It was the first commercial flight by a state institution football team, and, according to several newspaper accounts, the team left Greenville at 9:55 AM on Thursday, stopped in New York at 1:00 PM, and arrived in Boston by mid-afternoon. Although the innovative T-offense of Boston College overcame the vaulted single wing of Clemson by a 32-22 count, the flights to and from Boston went well enough that the team also flew to Raleigh to play N.C. State and to Pittsburgh to meet Duquesne later that season.

Coach Howard used the same pilot and hostess for the next 10 years. The hostess, who Howard remembers as a lady named "Browny", knew the game of football and would come to the games and sit in the press box with the assistant coaches. She would take notes about the game off what the coaches had told her, and the staff would use them in their halftime presentation to the team.

The team made the transition to air travel smoothly and has endured its dangers uneventfully, for the most part. However, a famous scare occurred at the airport in Houston as the team plane prepared to take off on the day following a 19-0 upset victory over Rice in 1959.

Mac McGrew, now an editor for The Raleigh News and Observer, recalls that sportswriters traveled with teams on chartered flights in those days. He was covering Clemson for The Columbia State and remembers, "It was a piston engine plane with four engines, and I was sitting near the front next to Coach Bob Jones. As the pilot was starting up the engines, one of them on the port side caught on fire. Suddenly, a co-pilot from up front came out and told everyone to get off the plane.

"Lou Cordileone blocked most of the aisle with his 250-pound frame. He was holding everyone up trying to put on his glasses so he would see how far he was going to have to jump. Just about the time he was going to deplane, the engine started up and the propeller blew the fire out."

McGrew also said the ACC put out a directive the next week that all charters would be with established airlines. This was a true "fly-by-night" organization. Clemson Sports Information Director Bob Bradley remembers, "This particular U.S. Overseas Airways plane and crew also served as the charter to fly the Air Force Academy to West Point for the first game between those two service academies that same weekend. So that same crew and plane flew from Fort Dix, NJ, to Greenville to Houston to Colorado Springs to New York to Colorado Springs to Houston to Greenville to Fort Dix all in the same weekend."

Current Administrative Assistant Don Wade was on the plane also, and he recalls vividly, "I don't think I've ever been so scared when I saw that ball of fire come out of that engine. It was a panic situation, but it only lasted about 10 seconds. The pilot later told me that we were just a few seconds from the plane being in flames."

Coach Howard can recall several minor scares and incidents through the 1950s and -60s, like the time Wade, then a player, and teammate Fred Cone, who knew how to fly, took off in a private plane while awaiting departure on a regular flight from Anderson.

The bus travel has not always been 100 percent reliable. In the mid-fifties before I-85 was finished, the Tigers used to travel to Georgia Tech by bus down state road 59. The team made the trip in two busses, but this particular season one of the vehicles broke down and delayed the trip. The team had an assigned practice time and further delay would force the team to miss the workout. So, Coach Howard told all the first-team players and top reserves to get on the bus that operated and had the other reserves and school President Dr. R.C. Edwards stay behind and hitch-hike to Atlanta.

Considering the bus broke down in Winder, GA, this was no easy task. But Edwards, a true Clemson man and football enthusiast if there ever was one, organized all the players in small groups and successfully got all the players rides into Atlanta by nightfall. "That was quite a sight, seeing us ride into town in cars, and on the backs of pickup trucks," recalls Edwards.

Perhaps the most glamorous trip the Tiger football team has ever taken was to Tokyo, Japan, to play Wake Forest in the Mirage Bowl on November 27, 1982. Current IPTAY Assistant Executive Secretary Bert Henderson was a trainer with the football team then and can recall many interesting logistical details from the organization of that trip.

The game, sponsored by Mitsubishi and contracted through Teleplanning International, was definitely on the schedule before the conclusion of the preceding school year, so Henderson and others began getting organized then.

He recalls initially the difficulty of obtaining the birth certificates of some of the players so they could get their passports. It was also necessary to account for each and every item to be taken on the trip, from helmets and shoulder pads all the way down to the smallest types of tape and medical equipment. For customs purposes, each item had to be listed and described in terms of its purpose.

In spite of all the preliminary details, the team made it to Japan, where more interesting details awaited. Of course, U.S. dollars had to be converted to Japanese yen. Also, the bulk of the American players and their equipment overwhelmed the Japanese, who, obviously, were accustomed to a smaller scale of humanity.

That size differential made for some very crowded buses and locker rooms, and Bert remembers with amusement and a confused shake of his head that, "it always seemed to take an hour and twenty minutes to get to practice and 10 minutes to get back."

Ah, practice. One that was scheduled to be on artificial turf took place on a tennis court. Another time, a "nice practice field" turned out to be a baseball diamond.

Perhaps the funniest anecdote of Bert's recollection involves the ice needed on game day. For a variety of purposes, the team generally needed about 300 pounds of ice during a game. When the ice showed up for the Mirage Bowl, there was enough of it, alright, but it came in the form of three 100-pound blocks. All Henderson and his cohorts could do was attack the blocks with chisels until the ice was manageably crushed.

In spite of it all, the Tigers came home with a 21-17 victory and the ACC title, but haven't left the Lower 48 since.

The Tigers have done their share of traveling over the years, averaging about 550 miles per road trip. So if anybody says that eight home games in one year isn't fair, throw them a few numbers and a little history and tell them we deserve it.

Tiger Band

By Annabelle Vaughan

Today is the day. They have waited for a year ... a long year. Over and over in their minds they have relived the scene ... David Treadwell's kick sailing between those goalposts, between those hedges and thousands of orange clad fans going wild. Today is the day these 'Dawgs hope to win revenge and the day those same orange clad fans hope to repeat what happened on that day last year.

It has become one of the fiercest rivalries in college football. Even though the rivals are not vying for state bragging rights, there is a great deal of pride on the line. As fierce as the rivalry is, it is hard to believe that the two schools are only a little over an hour's drive from each other. Close enough that on many Saturday's, Clemson fans heading north pass Georgia fans heading south. Close enough, it would seem, that fans between the hedges could hear the noise rising up from Death Valley.

Yes, the Clemson-Georgia rivalry has brought new meaning to the phrase "It's a Small World," one of the theme songs of Walt Disney World. Today, Tiger Band brings Disney home in a special way as they salute the music and magic of Walt Disney.

Before the band takes the field today, a very special guest will entertain fans. Jim Varney, of "Knowhatimean" fame will be in the valley today for his second visit. Varney will be greeted by Clemson students with 14,000 orange shakers. The shakers are sponsored by the Student Alumni Council and "Itza Pizza," a service of ARA food services.

A very special person in Clemson's athletic history will be honored today. Coach Banks McFadden, Clemson's only two-sport All-American, will have his football and basketball jerseys retired in a special ceremony (for more on McFadden, see page 52).

Finally, things get underway as Tiger Band takes the field for its traditional pregame show. Fans will relive the glory of the National Championship with the opening "Sock It To 'Em" followed by the Orange Bowl March and "Tiger Rag." As the band spells out the word "Tigers," IPTAY president Jim Patterson will have the honor of dotting the I. Patterson was a 1951 graduate of Clemson and is a native of the town of Clemson. He took his position in July and will serve until next June.

Tiger Band continues the pregame show by offering its rendition of "You're A Grand Ole Flag" and "America the Beautiful," directed by Dr. Richard E. Goodstein and accompanied by the Clemson University Chorus. "The Star-Spangled Banner" will be played next, directed by Dr. Bruce Cook, while an ensemble from Pershing Rifles Company C-4 presents the colors. Finally, both chorus and band will lead thousands of proud Tigers in the Clemson University Alma Mater. The invocation will be offered by Dr. Enoch Hendry of the Clemson United Methodist Church.

At halftime, the 230-member Tiger Band will offer a Salute to the Music and Magic of Walt Disney to celebrate the 15th birthday of Walt Disney World. The salute will begin by honoring a favorite of children of all ages: Mickey Mouse. "The Mickey Mouse March" wil be followed by the spritely "Zip-A-Dee-Doo-Dah," which was made famous in the Disney movie, "Song of the South."

"A Wish Is But a Dream" will be the next selection offered by Tiger Band. Next, Tiger fans will hope their wishes of victory will come true today when they hear the ever popular "When You Wish Upon A Star," which was arranged by Larry Kerchner. All other selections were arranged by Les Taylor.

And of course, no halftime would be complete unless it ended with Tiger Band's salute to all Tiger fans with "The Song That Shakes the Southland," TIGER RAG!!

Although many Tiger fans would argue that the real Magic Kingdom is Death Valley on a Saturday afternoon, it is actually in Lake Buena Vista, Florida. Just ask Band Director Richard Goodstein. Goodstein spent last summer at Disney World, and actually worked!

Goodstein directed the All-American College Band in the Magic Kingdom. The 20-member band, consisting of student musicians from colleges and universities throughout the United States, performed a variety of shows throughout the "lands" of the Magic Kingdom five days a week — flag retreats in Town Square, concerts in Fantasyland, lively marches through Frontierland and into Adventureland, musical sets in the courtyard of Cinderella's castle with the famous Disney characters, and performances heralding the nightly Main Street Electrical Parade throughout the Magic Kingdom.

Members of the band were selected from more than 800 musicians during a nationwide talent search. In addition to performing for the thousands of summer visitors to Walt Disney World, the band participated in rehearsals and workshops with professional jazz artists.

The University of Georgia Marching Band will also perform in today's halftime show. The 'Dawgs will demonstrate a variety of music arranged by Tom Wallace. They will open with "Don't Rain on My Parade." Next, the band will liven things up with two "Soul Sister Medleys." The medleys include Janet Jackson's "Control," Whitney Houston's "How Will I Know," and Aretha Franklin's "Respect." The show will close with "New York, New York '87." Georgia's band is directed by Dwight Satterwhite.

Dr. Richard Goodstein "worked" as director of the Walt Disney College band this past summer.

The Last Word

by Bob Bradley

Gen. Sherman came through Georgia in 1864 taking everything in sight. Ninety years later the Atlantic Coast Conference was formed and Clemson was already sneaking football players across the Savannah River to play for the Tigers. And they've been at it ever since.

Today when Clemson tees the ball up against the Bulldogs, no less than 25 native Georgians will be wearing the wrong color in the eyes of 'Dog coach Vince Dooley.

While there are some South Carolina prep players who 'go south' to gain their fame at Georgia, it seems that more are coming the other way. In the 35 years since the ACC came into being, over 200 Georgians have cast their lot with the Tigers.

Several have made All-American, at least 15 have made the All-ACC team and some went into professional ball.

Coach Frank Howard likes to talk about his players who became doctors, lawyers, corporation presidents, millionaires, and he said, "Believe it or not, I've had several to become preachers."

As he was telling this story, Joe Bowen, who came from Villa Rica and later married a Clemson girl and went to the Methodist seminary, walked into the room. Howard called the Rev. Mr. Bowen over and asked: "Son, did you ever play football for me?"

Bowen answered: "Hell yes. I heard the Lord's name used more on the football field than I ever did in the seminary."

Howard was also proud of some of his early players who later sent their sons back to play for him. The first one to do this was Buck Priester, Sr., who lettered in 1930-31, and his son, Buck, Jr., (LaGrange) came along in 1953-54-55.

Wingo Avery (Newnan) had to play both ways the same years as the younger Priester and holds the school record of blocking two punts in one ball game (vs. The Citadel, 1954).

Ken Moore, (Calhoun) who later married a daughter of the late Clemson president, Dr. R.F. Poole, averaged 30.4 yards rushing on five attempts in the same Citadel game, and those two records have stood for 33 years.

Charlie Hope (College Park) was the scout team quarterback and never got in a game unless the score was too far ahead or too far behind to worry about. He had the dubious distinction of losing a school record after it had been set in the same game.

The Tigers were playing Presbyterian in 1957 and leading 66-0 and had broken the school's total offense record when Hope came into the game. He lost 10 yards on two running plays and the record was gone.

Bill Mathis (Manchester) probably wore a football uniform longer than any other Tiger alumnus. He was one of the original New York Titans (Jets) and played pro ball 10 years, going to the Pro Bowl three times.

George Usry (Waycross) made the big play in maybe the most exciting game ever played in Memorial Stadium when he brought back an intercepted pass 73 yards against Wake Forest in 1959 that set up the winning touchdown in a 33-31 contest.

One Georgian helped another one out in 1960. Vic Aliffi (Savannah) was already on the team, but the Tigers were having trouble with their punting game. Aliffi's father was sheriff of Chatham County and he told Howard about a good punter. Howard thought the person was in high school, but Sheriff Aliffi said the one he spoke of was a Clemson student. That's how Eddie Werntz became one of the Tigers' all-time great punters.

Ricky Johnson began putting Plains on the map in 1963 — long before Jimmy Carter thought about becoming the nation's president.

The late George Burnett came from Atlanta and it was his father who supposedly heard the telephone conversation between coaches Wally Butts of Georgia and Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama which later brought on a much-publicized law suit against The Saturday Evening Post.

Jordan is one of many Georgia natives who have made significant contributions to Clemson football.

Jack Cain (Atlanta) was honored by the ACC in 1980 when he received the Brian Piccolo Award as the year's most courageous athlete.

Probably the biggest play Jeff Bryant (Atlanta) made in his college career was at Chapel Hill in 1981 when the Tar Heels were driving on Clemson late in the game and the Tigers were trying to protect a 10-8 lead. Scott Stankavage, UNC quarterback, threw an incomplete pass which Bryant fell on. It was ruled a lateral, giving Clemson possession to run out the clock and retain an undefeated record.

And, if a vote were taken today to name Clemson's best known football player, William Perry would probably be the winner. Ray Brown (Rome) is the one to put that now-famous moniker on the Chicago Bear star. Brown was the first to use "The Refrigerator" to describe his teammate. Some people across America and in Europe might not recognize the name of William Perry, but they can tell you who "The Fridge" is in a second.

Homer Jordan (Athens) led Clemson to its greatest accomplishment in 1981 when the Tigers won the national championship with a 12-0 season, ending with a 22-15 victory over Nebraska in the Orange Bowl. Jordan's 23-yard run to the Cornhusker 40 on a third-and-four situation let the Tigers keep possession and the eventual victory. Jordan was so dehydrated after the game that he was unable to enjoy the post-game dressing room celebration.

And, another Athens product, Norman Haynes, will certainly remember his performance last year in Sanford Stadium when he made a career high 14 tackles against the Bulldogs in Clemson 's 31-28 victory, the highest tackle total of the day for Clemson.

Georgia high school players selecting Clemson (and the same goes for South Carolina players choosing Georgia) is one reason the rivalry has become so keen between the two schools. And it starts early.

In 1965, when Art Baker was coaching the Clemson Cubs (freshmen) and getting ready to face the Georgia Bullpups, he noticed that Georgia was getting ready to send out all the South Carolina players for the flip of the coin. Baker countered by sending out all of the Georgia players who were on the Clemson team.

The Cubs outnumbered the Bullpups — but the game ended in a 6-6 tie.
